Tax Bill Wins In Senate; Profits Levy Postponed

Night Session Votes For $4.5 Billion Rise; Action on Excess Income Goes Over

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate last night passed the Administration's 4.5 billion dollar Korean war tax bill boosting rates on individual and corporate income but leaving excess profits untaxed.

The Senate shouted approval, without a roll call vote, at 9:42 p. m. after hours of continuous voting on a flood of proposed changes. Only a handful of amendments survived.

The bill now goes to conference with the House, which only yesterday left town for what amounts to a 10-day recess. Final approval thus will be delayed until the week of September 11, despite White House appeals for speed.

Only 2 Major Changes

Only two major changes were written into the bill as reported by the Senate Finance Committee.

A compromise amendment, calling on the next Congress to tax excess corporation profits, retroactively, was used to sidetrack a bi-partisan Senate drive to tax all such profits now. The compromise was adopted, 42 to 36.

An amendment sponsored by Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) upset the committee leadership 37 to 24 to restore the six months holding period for long term capital gains. The Finance Committee recommended that the holding period be cut to three months. Humphrey charged that would permit speculators to reap rich profits.

Except for two other minor amendments, the "interim" tax program laid down by the Finance Committee was approved without changes.

What Bill Provides

Major provisions of the bill:

1. A $2,745,000,000 increase in individual income taxes to near World War II peaks. Increases, amounting to around 20 percent for average middle and lower income taxpayers, will apply to one fourth of their 1950 earnings and all income thereafter. An increase in the individual withholding tax rate from 15 percent to 18 percent will go into effect starting October 1, providing Congress clears the bill in time.

2. A 1.5 billion dollar increase in corporation income taxes, applying to approximately half of this year's earnings, but fully effective in 1952. Corporations would pay a 25 percent normal tax plus a 20 percent surtax on incomes above $25,000. The present top rate on corporations of 38 percent would thus rise to 45 percent.

3. To bring in an additional 4.5 billion dollars over a five-year period, corporation income tax pay-

Truman Asks $23 Million For Schools

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

President Truman sent to Congress yesterday a request for $23,347,000 to pay for educating children who live on tax-exempt Federal property and in areas where sudden Federal expansion has created substantial enrollment increases.

The request, the President said, was being forwarded in "anticipation" of final congressional action on H.R. 7940, which has passed the House and is now on the Senate calendar awaiting action.

The measure authorizes Federal financial aid for maintenance and operation of schools in the "impacted" areas.

Office of Education officials declined last night even to guess how much of the 23-million-dollar sum would go to nearby Maryland and Virginia school districts. But they indicated the amount would be proportionately large compared to the rest of the country in view of the many Federal installations in this area.

In another action late yesterday, Senate and House conferees reached agreement on a companion bill providing Federal aid for

Gen. Electric Strike Called For Tuesday

Some 60,000 Workers Involved; Union Rejects Offer of Increase

New York, Sept. 1 (AP).—A strike against all General Electric Company plants to begin next Tuesday was called today by the International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO). Some 60,000 workers would be affected.

James B. Carey, IUE chairman, announced the strike call after an all-day meeting with representatives of all GE locals of the union.

The strike was called after the union rejected the company's offer which, with the three percent increase put into effect July 1, would average 10 cents an hour.

Carey said the union was asking for a 10-cent pay boost above the present wage scales. In addition, he said, the union wants the reinstitution of cost-of-living wage adjustment provisions and a profit-sharing plan.

The union action followed strikes at four GE plants at Lynn and Everett, Mass., and a walkout today at the company's Syracuse, N. Y., plant.

In issuing his strike call, Carey said:

"The General Electric conference board of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, CIO, has voted unanimously that no plant of GE or its subsidiaries or affiliates will operate beginning with Tuesday until a contract is negotiated."

Earlier today, GE said that the CIO union was not represented at 56 of its plants. Workers there, it said, are represented by other unions, including the independent United Electrical Workers, IUE archfoe which was ousted from the CIO recently on grounds that it followed the Communist line.

U. N. Votes 9-1 to Seat South Korea

With Malik Out As President, Council Breaks Month's Deadlock

Lake Success, Sept. 1 (AP). Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb took over the Presidency of the United Nations Security Council today and quickly broke the procedural blockade Russia's Jakob Malik had set up throughout his month as president.

Sitting as delegate for the Soviet Union, however, Malik continued his propaganda campaign against the United States and refused to give ground on any point.

Despite Malik's protests, the Council invited South Korean Ambassador John M. Chang to take part in the Korean discussions. It then turned down the Soviet Delegate's demand to extend an invitation to Communist North Korea.

By these two decisions the Council wound up the procedural wrangle and put itself in a position to begin debate next week on the three questons on its agenda: The Korea conflict, Red China's charges of American aggression against Formosa and Red China's charges of American air attacks on Manchuria.

Korea remains at the top of the agenda, but the United States this afternoon circulated a resolution providing for a two-man commission to make an on-the-spot investigation of the alleged air attacks.

A spokesman said Chief American Delegate Warren R. Austin would call for quick action on the Manchurian resolution next week. Austin told the Council yesterday a United States plane may have strafed a Manchurian airfield by mistake August 27.

The first of today's tests came after Malik challenged Jebb's ruling that Chang was entitled to sit at the Council table because the council had decided on June 25, the first day of the Korea conflict, to invite him. (Malik still was boycotting the council then).

The Soviet challenge was rejected 1 to 9, with only Malik voting in favor of the challenge.

Malik then submitted a proposal calling on the Council to invite representatives of both North and South Korea. Norway pointed out that if this were defeated it might be interpreted as reversing the Council's previous decision on Chang.

Jebb ruled Chang's position would not be affected. Again Malik challenged the chair. This time his challenge was defeated 1 to 8,

Suicidal Foe Stabs Wildly At Masan

GIs Hit Back, Regain Yongsan And Make Advance In Pohang Areas

By Russell Brines

Tokyo (Saturday), Sept. 2 (AP).—Counterattacking American forces, under a huge canopy of planes, today blunted the two-day-old 50,000-man Communist offensive.

The Americans not only struck back along the 55-mile sector where the Reds launched their drive yesterday but also opened attacks elsewhere around the 120-mile battle perimeter.

Yongsan, situated on a vital highway, was recaptured today.

Defenders of Masan, fighting within 35 air miles of the United Nations main port of Pusan, gave ground to onrushing "suicide" units of Reds, then regained their losses.

The Red offensive may already have cost North Koreans one fifth of their 50,000 men in dead and wounded.

The United States Second Infantry Division, which yesterday fell back 8½ miles at the point of heaviest pressure exerted by the Reds' offensive, regained flame-swept Yongsan to protect the vital Taegu-Pusan highway, 11 miles eastward.

At the south end of the 55-mile flaming front, the United States Twenty-fifth Division gave ground near Mason—which the Reds are under orders to capture by tomorrow—but blunted the tank-led push and battled back to their original positions.

Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton quoted officers as saying the situation around Masan was "serious but not critical."

One fight raged on a mountain where Red infiltrators are within three miles of Masan—or within 30 air miles of Pusan.

The two-day-old Red offensive, aimed at capturing Pusan and Taegu, already has cost the Reds 36 tanks destroyed or damaged, 3000 or more men killed and 6000 wounded. Building up these totals, 200 Navy and Marine carrier-based planes joined an all-out effort of land-based aircraft today in tearing into the Communist concentrations.

While the United States Second and Twenty-fifth Divisions were heavily engaged, other American units launched drives of their own at the east and northwest ends of the 120-mile United Nations defense wall.

North of recaptured Pohang, battered east coast port, tank-led Americans bid for commanding heights taken earlier by the Reds from back-tracking South Koreans.

Near Waegwan, 12 miles northwest of Taegu, United States First Cavalry Division elements strove today to seize three heights overlooking the Naktong River. In-

Truman Gets Controls Over U. S. Economy

Congress Gives Him All But 1 of Powers Asked And Several He Didn't

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

After six weeks of hearings, wrangling and voting, Congress enacted an economic controls bill yesterday giving the President all but one of the powers he requested, and several that he didn't.

The final votes were on a Senate-House conference committee report. It produced a compromise bill which, from the Administration standpoint, is probably better than either one of the House and the Senate versions.

The House approved it by voice vote, with only a scattering of "Nays," yesterday morning. By mid-afternoon, after some criticism from Republicans, the Senate passed it, again by voice vote. It reached the White House for President Truman's signature just after 4 p. m.

Provides Principal Powers.

The law gives the Administration the main economic mobilization, inflation control and defense production assistance powers it wants.

It permits allocation of scarce materials, priorities to defense contracts, control and punishment of hoarders, control of inventories to reasonable size, financing of defense production expansion, restriction of credit for housing construction and for installment buying, and the creation of a new organization like the War Labor Board to handle defense labor-management disputes.

The only authority Mr. Truman asked for that was denied him is the power to regulate commodity exchanges against speculative activity.

Though the history of the law showed robust debate on many of

Unenthusiastic Congress Due To Shelve Agency Dispersal

By Melvin Altshuler

President Truman's dispersal program—to decentralize "top priority" Government agencies away from the District—was marked yesterday for a pigeonhole on Capitol Hill.

Congressional sources as well as backers of the Administration proposal saw little chance for the $139,800,000 plan in the current session.

Observers said the plan was killed off by the freeze of House comments. These ran from the assertion that the program was designed to protect the "waffle-bottom" hides of bureaucrats to a suggestion that agencies should be dispersed to the Midwest, not nearby Maryland and Virginia.

The comments followed the appearance of Jess Larson, General Services Administrator, before a House Appropriations subcommittee Thursday. Larson is chairman of a 14-member advisory board to perfect the plan.

Larson was scheduled to testify before the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday, but his appearance was postponed until Tuesday.

The fact that Congress is bent on adjourning as soon as possible—perhaps by the middle of the month—doesn't help the measure's chances.

Mr. Truman's $139,800,000 request to Congress would provide for construction of Government buildings at four sites within commuting distance of Washington. Removal of many of the eyesore temporary buildings in downtown

6 Are Killed, 3 Safe As 'Flying Boxcar' Falls in Tennessee

Parsons, Tenn., Sept. 1 (U.P.).—An Air Force C-119 "Flying Boxcar" caught fire at 15,000 feet today and crashed in a cornfield, killing six men, but three others bailed out to safety.

First reports indicated that two GI's had parachuted to safety, while seven others had perished.

Rescue workers found the bodies of only six men. A search was started and the other survivor was found tangled in his chute.

Sergt. Richard Evans, Oak Lawn, Ill., a survivor, said one of the plane's two engines stopped and exploded into "100 pieces."

Stewart Air Force Base, near Nashville, where the troop carrier plane was based, identified the other survivor as Corpl. Joe T. Wooten, Dixie, Ga.

Army to Hold Ack-Ack Tests About Capital

2000 From Fort Meade To Take Part in Defense Maneuvers Sept. 11-23

The Army yesterday announced plans for preparing anti-aircraft defenses for Washington and other cities—declaring such protection does not now exist.

A spokesman made the announcement in outlining plans for an ack-ack training maneuver to be held in and around the Nation's Capital September 11-23.

"Because of the current world situation, anti-aircraft artillery units must be trained for instant use," said Col. Pierre B. Denson, commander of the 35th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Brigade who is in charge of the operation.

"The City of Washington, D. C., has been selected as a typical city for which antiaircraft artillery protection would be established in time of an emergency . . . Lessons learned from this exercise will be used in the planning and preparation for defense of other key industrial and population centers."

Denson told reporters that while the artillery units to be employed in "Operation Metro" are at Fort George G. Meade, Md., they have not been deployed around the city for actual defense since the end of the war.

During the forthcoming exercise, the Nineteenth AA Group will take up actual positions around the Capital, and work out the actual problem of defense of the city. There will be no actual firing, but a squadron of B-45 jet bombers from Langley Air Force Base, Va., will make both night and day bombing raids on key targets here, though no bombs, of course, will be dropped.

Denson said no searchlights will be used, as lights have "practically passed out of use" with the development of radar.

Similar maneuvers are planned for other cities, officials said.

Korean Invasion Will Be Crushed, President Tells Nation in Broadcast

By Edward T. Folliard

President Truman said last night that the United States was doubling the size of its armed forces to "close to three million" because of Communist threats of aggression. He said the figure might go even higher, and that the larger forces would have to be maintained for "a long time to come."

Mr. Truman, in a report to the Nation that was also aimed at Peiping and Moscow, said that the United States was determined to have peace in the world and did not want the fighting in Korea to "expand into a general war."

"It will not spread," he said, "unless Communist imperialism draws other armies and governments into the fight of the aggressors against the United Nations."

He expressed hope "in particular" that the people of China would not be misled or forced into the Korea fighting, and warned that there was no profit for any people who became tools and followed "the Communist dictatorship down its dark and bloody path." He reminded them that Russia already has started to dismember China; that Russia has never given up any territory it has acquired in the Far East, and that Russia has never given independence to any people who have fallen under its control.

Rejects "Preventive War"

The Chief Executive said that the United States did not believe in a "preventive war," adding that this was the weapon of dictators.

At the same time, he warned "would-be aggressors" not to miscalculate this Nation's power as Hitler and the Japanese generals did 10 years ago.

The President delivered his warning to would-be aggressors with considerable emphasis. He also put a punch into his words in saying that the United States would use its economic strength to "defend ourselves and establish peace."

Mr. Truman interrupted his address at one point to announce that Greece had offered to send ground troops to Korea—an offer which he described as most welcome. (News dispatches said a brigade of 5000 Greek troops would be sent.)

U. S. Casualties 6816 Until Aug. 26, Include 443 Dead

Identified American casualties in the Korean war totaled 6816, including 443 dead, through August 25, the Defense Department announced yesterday.

The first cumulative casualty toll issued in nearly three weeks showed 3889 wounded, and 2554 missing in action.

Identified casualties are those whose next of kin have been officially notified.

Actually, the Defense Department has officially reported a grand total of 6886 casualties. But this figure includes 70 persons once listed as missing in action who have since returned safely to United States lines.

While the department issues new casualty lists daily, it has adopted a policy of withholding cumulative totals until it is sure the information is "of no value to the enemy."

Air College Head Suspended For 'Preventive War' Remarks

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Air Force yesterday suspended Maj. Gen. Orvil A. Anderson as commandant of the Air War College for publicly talking about a "preventive war" against Russia.

Anderson was quoted by Montgomery, Ala., papers as saying he could "wipe out Russia's five A-bomb nests in a week" and that "waiting until you're hit first" is un-American.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF chief of staff, announced the crack-down on the veteran air strategist, declaring that the "primary purpose" of the Air Force is "the prevention of war."

It was the second disciplinary action taken by the Government within a week for talking about "preventive war." Secretary of the Navy Francis Mattthews advocated such a course in Boston a week ago yesterday. His views were disavowed by President Truman and he was rebuked for the speech.

"The premise that war is inevitable is not only untrue but is most dangerous," Vandenberg said. He added that Air Force personnel "at all levels" must understand and believe that the USAF aim is the maintenance of peace.

An Air Force spokesman said that Anderson's suspension was based on an interview published in the Montgomery Advertiser. The Air War College is in Montgomery.

In it the general was quoted as denying an assertion in Drew Pearson's column that he urges immediate "preventive war" against Russia both in War College teachings and public speeches. He declared the term is "meaningless" and that Pearson had "over-simplified" what he has said.

But then he went on to say, according to the Alabama paper:

Senate Group Confident U. N. Can Prosper Despite Russians

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee expressed confidence yesterday that the United Nations organization could survive and prosper in spite of possible Soviet efforts to destroy it.

If the Soviet Union tries "torpedoing" the U. N. by vetoes in the Security Council, the subcommittee reported, the free world can always make other defensive arrangements like the North Atlantic Treaty, and can put more and more of its "difficult problems" in the hands of the veto-less Assembly.

"If the Soviets try to kill the United Nations by formally withdrawing from the organization," the subcommittee went on, "constructive leadership on the part of the free nations could lead to the creation of a new or revitalized organization of the free nations of the world.

"Article 109 of the Charter makes provision for the calling of a general conference of members by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Thus if the Soviet Union should withdraw from the United Nations, the Charter provides a veto-less way for calling a conference which might deal with such a situation."

But the subcommittee, headed by Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), thought such a Soviet withdrawal unlikely at the present time. It saw no present need of revising the Charter, and reported the U. N. still had great untapped resources for keeping the peace.

"The Charter will carry far more traffic if the nations want it to do so," the subcommitee reported. "The Korean action shows

Red Cross Plans to Sell $225,000 Patterson Mansion

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The American National Red Cross has decided to sell the mansion at 15 Dupont cir., willed to it by the late Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, it was learned last night.

The 48-year-old mansion was home for President Calvin Coolidge and his family during 1927 when the White House underwent extensive repairs. The structure was designed by Stanford White, noted architect.

It also was learned last night that the District chapter of the Red Cross will open bids September 30 on a million-dollar building planned as a "model chapter house." The limestone structure, on Federal owned land on E st. between 20th and 21sts., will be four stories high and contain 42,000 square feet of office space.

Under the terms of the will, the American Red Cross was given the imposing 40-room Patterson residence and its furnishings, except for family portraits and silverware.

During the will contest, an estimated appraisal of $225,000 was mentioned as the value of the mansion and its land site. After the extensive court action over the will, the executors of the estate informed District Court that the appraised value of the personal property at the Dupont cir. mansion was $97,334.

The board of governors of the national group met recently and made plans for the sale. General George C. Marshall, president, appointed Harvey Gibson, a board member and president of the Manufacturers Trust Co. of New York City, to head a committee to make the arrangements.

Gibson's committee will meet in

Pvt. J. J. McCann

D. C. Soldier Missing in Korean War

Pvt. John J. McCann, 20, who had been yearning for an Army career since he was graduated from Langley Junior High School, has been reported missing in action in Korea.

Pvt. McCann

The adopted son of Mrs. Ellen B. Connolly of 1662 K st. ne., Pvt. McCann has been missing since July 27, his mother said.

Pvt. McCann was here on a three weeks' furlough in June. He left Washington on his birthday, June 20, for Japan. She has not heard from him since then.

Born in Washington, Pvt. McCann attended Holy Name School and Langley Junior High. He's had several jobs since then, his mother said, but nothing attracted him so much as the Army.

He joined the Army in May, 1949, was trained as an airborne infantryman, later joined the Eleventh Airborne Division. He gave up his airborne status when he volunteered to go overseas, Mrs. Connolly said.

He is the thirteenth local man to be reported missing. Four have been reported killed and 24 wounded.

Area Man Wounded, Another Is Injured

The Defense Department yesterday listed two more Washington area men as casualties in the Korea fighting on casualty list No. 82.

The men are Corpl. Dallas L. Warble, brother of Mrs. Edith V. Bigar, of Harrisonburg, Va., missing in action; Sergt. First Class Freddie R. Medlin, husband of Mrs. Ruth Medlin, Westminster, Md., injured.

The total of Washington area casualties is now four killed, 14 missing, and 25 wounded.

MacArthur Sure of U. N. In World Role

Tokyo, Sept. 1 (AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today condemned imperialistic militarism under "unified direction," but said the United Nations is "morally and physically able" to secure world peace.

His formal statement was issued on the eve of Saturday's fifth anniversary of Japan's formal surrender. He spoke as Supreme Commander for Allied Powers in Japan, not as U. N. commander for the Korean campaign.

The hope for world peace has not materialized, MacArthur said, but the U. N. "has proved itself morally and physically able to meet the challenge of its charted responsibility" of gaining a peaceful world.

He added that "imperialistic militarism, marching under differing banners bu unified direction, is leaving in its wake the stark tragedy of human and spiritual wreckage."

In Japan, he said, the only unsolved problem is security against attack. He said Japan has proved herself ready to resume membership in good standing in the family of free nations.

Pope Ends 18-Day Rest

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Sept. 1 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XII ended his 18-day summer rest today and resumed private and special audiences at the Pontifical summer residence here.

Tokyo (Saturday), Sept. 2 (AP).—United Nations fighters and bombers struck savagely Friday with heavy explosives, rockets, Napalm fire bombs and machine guns at attacking Red Korean hordes on the southwest battle front.

Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported from the Nasan front, about 35 air miles from the main United States supply port of Pusan, that Allied war planes were hammering a 10-mile wide sector between Haman and the Nam River.

Haman, captured by the Reds but later retaken by counter-attacking American tanks and ground troops, is about 8 air miles west of Nasan, gateway to Pusan, 27 miles to the east.

Observation Planes in Air

Joining in the vicious air assault were B-26 bombers, Mustangs, Shooting Star jets and Navy Corsair fighters.

The Navy said its fighter planes will give close support to the ground troops "until further notice." The Navy has been concentrating on Communist attempts to supply their army by water.

United States Fifth Air Force observation planes hovered over the battle area directing the fighters and bombers to targets.

A United States Marine Corps helicopter disregarded heavy enemy fire and landed at an infantry position to remove a badly wounded soldier.

Small observation planes also dropped supplies to a cut-off American infantry company.

An air operations liaison officer said the mass air assault is "modeleled after the big B-29 anti-personnel raid" of two weeks ago.

Lieut. Thomas W. Queen, San Diego, Calif., reported his Shooting Star jet group attacked three enemy tanks near Waegwan and destroyed one and damaged the other two. Waegwan, about 12 miles northwest of the hub city of Taegu, is at the northern end of the western front.

Industrial Center Hit Again

B-29 Superfortresses and B-26s ranged northward to strike at railroad yards, bridges and supply areas.

Col. Charles G. Bendley, chief of Staff of the Far East Air Forces bomber command, said Saturday the heavily bombed military-industrial area of Chinnampo on the west coast of North Korea can make "little if any" further contribution to the North Korean war effort.

The port for the North Korean capital of Pyongyang was blasted by B-29s Thursday.

After an hour and 40 minutes over it in observation, Bendley recommended that the port be removed from the command's list of strategic targets.

Possible Firing On China Field Is Confirmed

The Air Foorce confirmed yesterday that a United States F-51 fighter plane may have strayed across the Chinese Communist border and strafed a Manchurian air base on August 27.

A spokesman said Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the United Nations, was "complete and factual" when he told U. N. Security Council Thursday there was a "possibility" the incident occurred.

Austin urged the U. N. to send an investigating commission to the scene immediately to establish the facts. It the attack did happen, he said, this country will pay damages and punish those responsible. The Security Council voted 8 to 3 to put the issue on its agenda.

The report was sent by Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, Far Eastern Air Force commander, directly to Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Chief of Staff, in Washington. Vandenberg relayed it to Air Secretary Thomas K. Finletter who handed it to Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.

It then went to Secretary of State Dean Acheson and finally to Austin in New York.

The Red airstrip allegedly attacked is at Antung in Southern Manchuria, just five miles from the North Korean frontier. The Communists claimed two F-51s were involved and said three persons were killed and 19 wounded.

telligence officers considered this sector a likely springboard for a second—but as yet withheld—major Communist attack.

New Allied Power

The flaming western and southern fronts dominated the battle scene, but the ability of the United Nations to launch simultaneous attacks elsewhere suggested their new built-up power.

The fighting was most bitter and, at times, confusing in the Yongsan and Masan sectors, where infiltrating Reds isolated a number of American units.

Artillerymen had to fight infantry engagements. So did engineers. One artillery unit lowered its guns and fired point-blank to shoot its way out of an embattled position.

Transport planes dropped supplies to the cut-off American units.

Swinton's dispatches repeatedly reported "suicide" attacks in the Masan sector—where the Communists threw themselves on exploding minefields and against machinegun-covered barbed wire entanglements so that succeeding waves of soldiers and tanks could move in.

Swinton said the suicide elements screamed as they rushed forward.

Fresh GIs Move In

Long lines of fresh American infantrymen and tanks moved up to the defense of Masan and the menaced supply road.

"Fighting flamed along the entire 25th Division front Saturday as the North Koreans' Sixth and Seventh Divisions struck in suicide attacks," Swinton reported at noon from Masan.

The Second Infantrymen's hard won success of Yongsan came as the Reds poured reinforcements across the Naktong seeking to split the Second and the Twenty-fifth Divisions.

Associated Press Correspondent Ben Price said the Communist reinforcements streamed over during last night intent on exploiting yesterday's penetration.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Huth, from a hill one mile away from Yongsan watched heavy fire from the Reds strike the town as the Second Division's Infantry and tanks advanced int. its shattered ruins.

The Americans opened their counterattack for Yongsan between 7 and 8 a. m. today (4-5 p. m. EST., Friday) after the Communists had attempted to push east on the road leading from that town to Miryang, the junction point for the Taegu-Pusan highway.

"We have Yongsan," later reported Maj. Joseph W. Walter of Olympia, Wash.

Then he announced his next objective: to gain two ridges north and northwest of Yongsan dominating the ferry and fording places where at midnight Thursday the Reds started pouring across the Naktong.

That was the big spot among the 17 places where the Reds made river crossings—taking advantage of a drought which had almost dried up the Naktong in places.

Even as stiffening American resistance appeared to be blunting what some officers regard as the Reds' last big offensive, a Twenty-fifth Division spokesman said today's action may be the decisive one.

The North Koreans were the first to strike today. They opened up with a tank-led thrust at 5 a. m. about 9 miles west of Masan. Two of their suicide strikes were made against the United States fifth regimental combat team on the southern flank of the Twenty-fifth's line.

The United States Eighth Army, summarizing the first day's action, said the Reds yesterday threw their main weight astride the Naktong River near its confluence with the Nam—then northeastward toward Yongsan.

Today the Reds struck their heaviest blows at the lines of the Twenty-fifth Division defending Masan, which they have been ordered to capture not later than tomorrow.

Cooks Turn to Rifles

At times there was no semblance of battle lines in this sector. Cooks and bakers grabbed rifles to help fight off the Reds. One group of Communist infiltrators sneaked close to a rear area hospital. South Korean marines wiped out this group.

A Twenty-fifth Division spokesman said the maximum Red penetration on the Masan front was less than two miles at a few points since the start of the offensive at midnight Thursday.

Midway along the north end of the battle perimeter, near Uihung, the South Korean Sixth Division hit back at a Red force which had driven within 16 miles of Taegu from the northeast. Yesterday the South Koreans gained nearly a mile at the outset of this attack.

New Midget Mortar Unveiled by Enemy

On the Masan Front (Saturday), Sept. 2 (AP).—The North Korean army unveiled a new weapon Friday.

United States Infantrymen described it as a midget mortar which threw shells about the size of an American hand-grenade.

Men Up to 35 and War II Vets May Be Drafted Early in 1951

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Veterans of World War II and men between the ages of 25 and 35, as well as married men and men with dependents—all now exempt—may be brought into the draft early next year, an Administration legislative leader disclosed yesterday.

Representative Carl Vinson (D. Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, announced on Thursday that family men in the 19-to-26 draft age bracket might be called up "right away" through a change in Selective Service regulations.

Yesterday Vinson revised his prediction. He said that married men and those with dependents are in no danger of being called up before next January.

Representative Vinson said he thought it would be wrong to draft fathers, however, before single men are brought into the armed forces.

The present Selective Service Act permits the drafting of non-veteran single men exclusively in the 19-through-25-year-age levels. Vinson said Congress certainly would think about raising the top age limit to 35, and bringing in veterans, before calling up the young fathers.

The committee chairman also said he believed that the number of draftees inducted could be increased by lowering the present physical and mental standards for inductees.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard—which in peacetime is attached to the Treasury Department and in times of war is moved over to the Navy—yesterday asked Congress for the right to call up draftees so as to expand its operations.

The Coast Guard also asked for authority to call up reserves and to freeze present enlistments. The Coast Guard said it would "inevitably" have to expand unless the Korean war ends quickly.

Chairman Vinson replied to the request by suggesting that the Coast Guard ask the Navy for the additional personnel it needs, or as an alternative, to get President Truman to transfer the Coast Guard from the Treasury to the Navy. Then the Navy could use its draft power to get more men for the Coast Guard.

Congress yesterday completed action on the doctor-draft bill and sent it to the White House. The measure permits the drafting of doctors, dentists and allied specialists through the age of 50.

Mass Induction Ceremony Scheduled Wednesday

A mass induction ceremony will be held Wednesday for 55 draftees, the first District group called up in the Nation-wide draft of 100,000 men.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, will be the principal speaker at the exercises at 3 p. m. at the "Liberty Bell.":pP etaoin etanion District Building, site of the "Liberty Bell."

Also participating will be Brig. Gen. William Abendroth, commander of the District National Guard; William E. Leahy, head of the local Selective Service, and John Russell Young, chairman of the Board of Commissioners.

East German Reds Purge 6 High Aides

Berlin, Sept. 1 (AP).—Six high officials of the East German Communist regime, includng the deputy to Propaganda Chief Gerhart Eisler, were reported under arrest tonight after banishment from the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party for anti-Sovietism.

Berlin speculated that Eisler himself may be next on the list. Eisler lost his place on the Central Committee of the party in a recent shakeup. But the fugitive from American justice still was reported at liberty.

The Russian-zone Politburo warned the purge would slash deeper 'until foul liberalism is finished."

Walter Ulbright, East German Deputy Chancellor and Secretary-General of the party, led the attack against the veteran Reds.

He accused them of postwar connections with "American spy Noel H. Feld" and of forming a "nest of class enemies" inside the party.

'No Doubt is Possible.'

All were charged with "lacking trust in the Soviet Union as the leading progressive force, in which no doubt is possible."

Reliable information indicated the six had been jailed by the Soviet Zone Ministry of State Security in advance of the purge announcement. The zonal press office said it could neither confirm nor deny the report.

This office, headed by Eisler, lost Deputy Propaganda Chief Bruno Goldhammer in the purge.

Goldhammer, a pro-Communist for 20 years, was hounded by the Nazis in half a dozen concentration camps until he escaped and hid in northern Italy.

The purge victims reported behind bars, besides Goldhammer, are:

Paul Merker, State Secretary in the East German Agricultural Ministry and former Politburo member; Leo Bauer, chief editor of Radio Berlin; Willy Kreikemeyer, general director of zonal railways; Lex Ende, former chief editor of Neues Deutschland, official party paper and since editor of the Communist Fridenspost, and Maria Weiterer, a party organizer.

Four Not Expelled

Four others were fired from jobs in the East German Government, but not expelled from the party. Wolfgang Langhoff, manager of the Deutschen Theater in East Berlin, was the most widely known The others—Bruno Fuhrmann, Hans Teubner and Walter Beling—held minor positions.

Goldhammer vanished sometime ago. He has not been seen in Eisler's office recently, but Eisler himself stage-managed a news conference at the Leipsig fair last Sunday and signed an editorial in Neues Deutschland last week.

A new 52-member committee replaced the former 80-member National Committee, or Vorstand. Eisler was a member of the Vorstand, but failed to be re-elected to the new committee. No reason was given for dropping him.

Field Case Recalled

The Noel Field case still is a mystery.

Field, reputed to have wide acquaintance with the Communist underground in Nazi-occupied Europe, worked after the war for American charity agencies behind the Iron Curtain. He was a U. S. State Department employe from 1930 to 1935.

He dropped out of sight about 15 months ago. Two members of his family vanished while searching for him in east Europe. They were his wife, Mrs. Herta Field, and his brother, Hermann Field, a Cleveland architect.

The Politburo said Field was a crony of Allen Dulles, director of the American OSS (Office of Strategic Services) in Switzerland during the war. Field was alleged to have delivered secret Communist plans from Willy Kreikemeyer to Dulles.

100 for Perfect
Reporter Shines in Marine Test

It took a reporter, mark you, to do it: crack the Armed Forces qualification test for a score of 100.

The journalistic profession's pride in this was shared yesterday by the Marine recruiting office here, since it recruited the reporter.

DeLuna

The Marines were so proud that they inaccurately intimated all questions on the exam—a sort of IQ test for the prospective GI—were answered correctly.

It took the very reporter in question, mark you, to set this one right.

"I got 88 out of 90 qestions right," said The Evening Star's Fred de Luna, "and they gave me 100 . . . Now that's screwy; I don't know how they get 100."

De Luna is 22 and lives in Beltsville. He's been on the Star four and a half years—first as a copy boy, the last two years as a reporter. Recently he's been writing stories about recruits.

This may be irony, but it is not what got Fred into the Marines. He wants to be a combat correspondent. The Marines don't promise.

"Quote, the Marines don't promise nothing, unquote," quoth Fred.

Reporter de Luna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos M. de Luna, enters the Marines September 12. He's a graduate of the Hyattsville High School and has attended George Washington University.

Besides de Luna, the Marines yesterday tentatively accepted a woman candidate, enlisted one recruit, and accepted a former Marine back into the Corps.

The Army-Air Force recruiting office had a perfect day—11 applicants, all accepted. Nine were for the Army, two for the Air Force.

AF Suspends Gen. Anderson

time and place of attack then our back is broken . . . This doctrine of waiting until you're hit first, even when you know the first blow will kill you, is queer. It doesn't come from Americans. Americans believe in taking the initiative."

Anderson also was quoted as saying:

"Give me the orders to do it and I can break up Russia's five A-bomb nests in a week. And when I went up to Christ I think I could explain to him why I wanted to do it—now—before it's too late. I think I could explain to him that I had saved civilization."

He did not elaborate on his cryptic reference to the Soviet's five A-bomb nests, and Air Fore spokesmen here would not comment. But there was conjecture as to whether Anderson had not spilled an intelligence secret. Some inferred from the reference that American intelligence might have located USSR atomic production in five centers.

An Air Force spokesman could not say what further steps would be taken in Anderson's case, other than further investigation.

General Anderson was quoted as saying that Secretary Matthews had "invited a throw" by using the term "preventive war." He defended, however, the right of military men to speak on such subjects.

Role of a General

"If a general spends 30 years at his job and can't advise the State and its people what to do on technical military matters, he's been wasting his time," he said.

This approach was a reference also to the crackdown on General MacArthur for his comment on Formosa.

Anderson also was quoted as saying that "if a World War breaks out, Russia will not declare it but the United States will because it will be our backs to the wall, not theirs."

"For every month that country's military is allowed to grow," he added, "two more American cities may well face annihilation."

In announcing Anderson's suspension, Vandenberg said:

"I have, this date, suspended Maj. Gen. Orvil Anderson, as commandant of the Air War College, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama."

Reason for Statement

"The Air Force, as a member of the defense team has as its primary purpose the prevention of war. In a speech at Chicago in April, 1948, I said, 'The premise that war is inevitable is not only untrue but is most dangerous. We will not lose or lessen our desire for peace. We will work for peace as hard as we can."

"This faith in the Air Force as an important force for the maintenance of peace, . . . I am making this statement so that American citizens may know that the Air Force first, last and always is primarily an instrument for peace."

General Anderson has been in command of the Air War College since June, 1946, taking that post after he had served as senior military adviser with the United States strategic bombing survey. He is 55 years old and served as operations chief of the Eighth Air Force during World War II.

3 Ex-U. S. Aides Refuse to Tell 'Red' Status

By the United Press

Three former Agriculture Department employes refused for a second time yesterday to say whether they are Communists and challenged the House Committee on Un-American Activities to cite them for contempt.

The committee gave every indication it would oblige. Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) said all three "are definite candidates for contempt of Congress."

They are John J. Abt, Charles Kramer and Nathan Witt, all of New York. They were identified last Monday by former CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman as members of the same Communist cell he joined here in 1934 in "rebellion" against the depression.

They gave the same excuse yesterday for not testifying as they did when they first appeared in 1948—that their testimony might incriminate them.

They were recalled in an effort to solve the "riddles" in the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers Red spy case. Chambers had said Hiss was a member of their Communist cell. Pressman said he wasn't. The three witnesses refused even to discuss the matter.

Kramer summed up their attitude when he said he had no intention of surrendering his constitutional right to plead self-incrimination "because a committee of Congress threatens to breach this right by contempt citations."

Walter said Thursday that self-incrimination was not a valid excuse for not testifying because testimony before a congressional committee cannot be used in the courts. He did not elaborate.

Abt and Witt also accused the committee of calling them to establish the basis for contempt action. The pointed out that they had refused to testify in 1948 and that their position had not changed.

Pressman was assistant legal chief at the Agriculture Department when he joined the Red cell, while Abt and Witt were legal experts with the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. Kramer was a triple-A economist. All four worked for Henry A. Wallace, then Secretary of Agriculture.

Witt bluntly refused to discuss his alleged associations with Hiss, former State Deparment officer who was convicted in New York of perjury. He is now free on bail pending an appeal.

When committee counsel Frank Tavenner, Jr., asked whether he ever attended a Red meeting with Hiss, the witness refused to say "on the grounds that my answer might tend to incriminate me."

Tavenner then called the roll of some 25 to 30 alleged members of the Communist underground and asked each witness in turn whether they knew any of the persons. Each refused to answer.

Abt said, however, that he believes a man can be a Communist and a "loyal American" at the same time. He said he is a loyal American.

In reply to questions, Kramer said he has not yet "made up my mind whether I would fight in the war against North Korea if I were drafted."

"I would have to make that decision when the time came," he added.

Lowenthal Called 'Menace to America'

By the United Press

Representative George A. Dondero (R., Mich.) said yesterday that Max Lowenthal, former Government official now practicing law in New York, is a "menace to the best interests of America."

Lowenthal, who has been subpenaed by the House Committee on un-American Activities in connection with its Reds-in-Government inquiry, is former Jewish property disposal adviser to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, when head of the United States Military Government in West Germany.

Dondero said in a speech on the House floor that Lowenthal's record in Government since 1917 is "replete with incidents in which he aided and abetted Communists."

Germans Ship Trucks East; U. S. Halts 356

Bonn, Germany, Sept. 1 (AP).—The United States High Commission announced today the seizure of 356 former United States Army Trucks as they were about to disappear behind the Iron Curtain. This was part of a crackdown on German export of strategic goods to the Communist East.

Western Allied officials said the United States, Britain and France have told the Germans they must try strenuously to stop the leakage eastward of strategically valuable products. More vigorous enforcement of existing restrictions was reported demanded.

The trucks, sold as Army surplus, were being sent to Hungary by a Frankfurt sales agency on licenses issued by the West German Government.

The trucks were stopped at the German-Czechoslovak border control point of Schirnding by American soldiers on customs duty. This fleet was part of a 1000-truck order from the Hungarian Government. The High Commission said the agency had violated export rules.

Several carloads of unspecified materials also are held up at the eastern frontier, the Commission said.

Authority to license most German exports was turned over to the West German government by the Alles four months ago.

German and Allied economic experts have been reviewing the control machinery to stop two types of shipments. They are:

1. Strategic materials on the prohibited lists agreed to by Marshall Plan nations. List "A" contains materials and machinery banned for export to eastern countries. Lst "B" enumerates goods which must not go east in excessive quantities.

2. Normal trade goods outside Allied-approved trade agreements. Allied investigations have shown a huge international black market is shipping consumer goods, raw materials and machinery into East Germany and other Soviet satellites.

Russia Agrees to New Talks On Independence for Austria

London, Sept. 1 (AP).—Russia has agreed to join the Big Three Western Powers next week in a new discussion of an Austrian treaty of independence.

The United States, British and French Deputy Foreign Ministers working on the pact have been so informed by Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin, the Russian representative, official sources reported today.

The deputies will meet September 7 to see whether East or West is ready to soften its attitude over the few remaining differences holding up the treaty. They met last July 10 for the 257th time, but found deadlock as complete as ever.

Restoration of Austrian independence—lost in the 1938 anschluss with Germany—was promised by the Big Powers in the 1943 Moscow declaration.

Zarubin had charged the United States and Britain were turning Trieste into a naval base and would do the same in Austria. The Western Powers dismissed his charges as "pretexts" for stalling conclusion of the treaty.

West Berlin Police Dampen Reds' March

Berlin, Sept. 1 (U.P.).—Some 1000 Communist demonstrators from East Berlin descended on the Schoeneberg City Hall in the American sector today and were put to flight when police turned water hoses on them.

Police reported they arrested about 50 demonstrators before the crowd was dispersed. Some police estimates of the throng ran as high as 3000.

$23 Million School Aid Asked by Truman school construction in the same overburdened districts.

This construction measure authorizes 175 million dollars for school buildings over a three-year period and a $3 million survey of school needs throughout the country.

Under the bill, the Government could contribute up to 95 percent of construction costs where the school-age population is swollen by 5 percent or more by new families who live on Federally owned properties.

Federal aid would be only 70 percent in cases where a 10 percent enrollment was caused by influx of families who work for the Government but do not live on Federal reservations.

The Government chips in up to 45 percent of construction costs in areas where the school population has jumped 20 percent because of increased Federal activities.

The construction bill, sponsored by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), will go to the Senate and then back tot the House for final approval, probably next Wednesday or Thursday.

In a White House statement, President Truman explained that his supplemental apropriations request of $23,347,000 to finance the maintenance and operations measure would provide 23 million dollars in grants to the impacted areas and $347,000 for the Office of Education for administration of the program.

The sum is for only one year's operation, officials said.

Both measures have had enthusiastic backing of school officials of the nearby area.

The over-all problem these two measures aim to alleviate grew out of the acquisition of large property holdings by the Federal Government and a subsequent influx of Federal workers. Proponents of the legislation emphasize that this has meant a simultaneous increase in the school-age population and a decrease in the taxable sources of income.

Wright pleaded not guilty yesterday through his attorney, Hal C. B. Clagett. Clagett told the court he had discovered evidence of divorce proceedings between his client and Mrs. Imogene Wright, the other wife, but had not yet located the record of a decree.

Hoover 'Gag' Wows Musical Audience

By Richard L. Coe

WOULD YOU HAVE thought that Herbert Hoover could have written one of the funniest lines of a sprightly summer musical of 1950?

Well, he has, and it gets three shots and good laughs in "Tea for Two," a frolicsome musical on the Warner screen which shows off Doris Day, Gordon MacRae, Gene Nelson, Eve Arden, Billy De Wolfe and S. Z. Sakall to good advantage. Even Sakall will make you chuckle.

To get back to Herbert Hoover: The time is the fall of '29 and the radio is constantly assuring the worried rich set that "The President of the United States says that the fundamental business of the country is on a sound and practical basis." This gets bitter cracks from the cast and knowing horselaughs from the audiences. Kinda funny.

"Tea for Two," boils down to a melange of songs by Youmans, Gershwin, Rogers and Hart and their pals of the twenties. You get the title number as a theme song, "Crazy Rhythm," "I Only Have Eyes for You," "Charleston," "I Want to Be Happy" and "Oh Me! Oh My!"

Linking them together is a combination of plots that leads you back to the twenties and one of Youmans' biggest hits, "No, No Nanette." The heroine can't say yes for several days; if she manages to stick to saying "No" to all questions, she'll get a fortune. With which, natch, she'll back the show Hero MacRae has composed.

It's all nonsense, but purposely so, a definition that doesn't always fit all movies. Blond Miss Day is lovable as she should be and MacRae gives the old songs that slow tempo the fifties seem to feel fittin'.

Gene Nelson has several grand dance spots. Taller than either Astaire or Gene Kelly, Nelson strikes me as a real threat to their movie dance reign. While he hasn't yet developed the sparkling, individual personality of either, he improves with each picture. His numbers with Miss Day and his own stair dance are extremely watchable.

The comedy has the advantage of Billy De Wolfe and Eve Arden at the top of their marks. Billy's a screwy producer and Eve the inevitable secretary. Harry Clark's screen play gives them some good lines. And for the first time in years, S. Z. Sakall seemed to me to have a bit more than just pouting to do. If you like him ordinarily, you'll enjoy him the more in this one.

Technicolored and decorative, "Tea for Two" is the frothiest musical the Brothers Warner have made in years.

"TEA FOR TWO." Warner Brothers release produced by William Jacobs. Screen play by Harry Clark, suggested by "No, No, Nanette" by Frank Mandel, Otto Harbach, Vincent Youmans and Emil Nyitray. Photographed in Technicolor by Wilfrid M. Cline. Songs by Cecil Mack, Jimmy Johnson, Anne Caldwell, Vincent Youmans, Irving Caesar, Joseph Meyer, Roger Wolfe Kahn, Al Dubin, Harry Warren, Otto Harbach and Emil Nyitray and George and Ira Gershwin. Dances by Le Roy Prinzi. Directed by David Butler. At the Warner.

Evelyn's menaced home on "Angel Street," is what they mean when they say "a child of the theater." . . . Elfy's everyone's idea of a quaint darling, both for the things she does and the way she has of putting things. . . . Elfy loved her trip to Olney via Olney, she said, after getting here via three bus lines and 10 extra hours of travel. . . . And she looks ineffably sweet when she remarks: "I do so love playing horrid old women." . . . It was her success as just that in "Kind Lady," which typed her for years, but now she's playing gentlewomen again. . . . A lot of her time, though, is spent worrying about the brother for whom she keeps house, Clarence Derwent, president of Actors' Equity, whose engagement pad keeps him hopping to more meetings than a Washington coordinator.

JUDITH EVELYN may not realize it, but she's been delighting her fellow players of "Angel Street." . . . Laraine Day has had this part all summer, but Judith took her old role back when baseball outranked Laraine's weekly salary . . . Her fellows say it's quite a different play, that after the erratic performances of someone not really interested in acting, it's "like being in a play again." . . . After the four weekend performances, Judith's off to Montreal, where Otto Preminger insists he has a good, but small role for her in his latest movie.

"THE THIRD MAN" quickly replaced "Mad About Opera" at the Dupont and a good thing, too, for that would have only emphasized how much better the same singer—Tito Gobbi—is in the Plaza's "Pagliacci." . . . The Plaza's now holding its Italian singers for a fourth week.

"ARCH AND RED," which is what C. U.'s Arch Lustberg and Jack Mannion call their act, Comedienne Mildred Harvey and some 16 other boys and girls of the area are entertaining United States soldiers in the Hudson Bay area of Canada this Labor Day weekend. . . . The principals have gone up that way before for the Military District of Washington, though that doesn't mean that Canada's Hudson Bay falls under the MDW . . . Or does it?

IN BRIEF: The National switches its opening day tomorrow, putting in a holiday double bill: "Mississippi" and "Belle of the Nineties." . . . Better get out to Glen Echo if you're going; there's only 'til the tenth for that pleasant spot. . . . "Saludos Amigos" and "Dumbo" start a Disney Festival at the Little; "Bambi" will follow. . . . Watch the nabes for Disney's "Treasure Island." . . . Matinee today at Arena Stage. . . . The kids of "Going Native" have their toughest playing assignment of the week: five stage shows today.

TWO AT TEA: Gene Nelson and Doris Day dance in the Warner's musical, "Tea for Two," a melahge of Youmans-Gershwin and Rogers tunes of the twenties. Eve Arden and Billy De Wolfe head the comedy department

Nomination Of O'Dwyer Stirs Protests

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said yesterday the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has received 15 or 20 protests on the nomination of New York Mayor William O'Dwyer to be Ambassador to Mexico and may have a public hearing on it.

He said there was no immediate plan to call O'Dwyer or his political sponsor, New York Democratic leader, Edward J. Flynn, but both will be welcome if they want a hearing.

Connally said that if extensive hearings are required, a Senate vote on confirmation might go over until next year. O'Dwyer, now en route to California for a vacation before taking over the new post, could serve under an interim appointment.

Connally said the protests include charges by Rep. Vito Marcantonio (A. L., N. Y.) and Arthur Schutzer, secretary of the American Labor Party, that there were political machinations behind the appointment.

There have been reports that Flynn urged the appointment at the White House on the grounds that it would help the Democratic situation in the New York elections.

Marcantonio and Schutzer demanded that Flynn be called for questioning on those reports.

Connally said he believed that if there is a hearing, "Marcantonio ought to be called."

Other protests, Connally said, came from Henry V. Poor; Rowland Watts of the Workers Defense League, Philip Grussy, Elmhurst, Long Island; Herma J. Holtz, Brooklyn, and Florence M. P. Vankirk, New York.

Connally said Poor seemed to have a "general grouch" against O'Dwyer. He said it involved O'Dwyer's repeated announcements in May and June of 1949 that he would not be a candidate for reelection as mayor and his subsequent change of mind.

Mexico Given U.S. Bank Loan Of $150 Million

By The Associated Press

The Export-Import Bank yesterday announced a 150-million-dollar loan to Mexico which President Aleman had reported earlier in his "state of the nation" address.

Top officials promptly hailed the move as further indication of United States-Mexican solidarity, emphasizing that the loan will be mutually beneficial to both countries.

Some sources termed it a diplomatic and economic victory for Mexico. One said privately the total was about three times as much as Mexico actually expected.

The loan officially is to finance transportation, both rail and highway; agriculture, including irrigation; communications, electric power generation and transmission. Oil was not mentioned.

Indirectly, however, the money could finance Mexico's oil development program. Money now being spent in Mexico for other projects can be diverted to oil, while the new money will pay for the previous programs.

Herbert E. Gaston, chairman of the board of directors of the Export-Import Bank, sidestepped the issue when questioned at a news conference.

He emphasized that oil development was not to be financed by the new loan, and said it had not been brought up except in informal discussions.

But when asked if the loan might be described as an indirect financing of Mexican oil development, he said merely that "it is impossible to segregate exchange."

Gaston said the money will be set aside immediately for Mexico's future use. It will be released millions at a time on specific projects as they come up, insuring Mexico of a well-financed long-range program of development.

He said two irrigation projects—one the Falcon Dam on the Rio Grande and the other a large project in Sonora—probably would be the first to get underway.

Next, he said, might be the purchase of equipment and materials for Mexico's railroads.

A third project well advanced and probably ranking near the top, he said, was completion of a Nogales-to-Guadalajara highway.

Baltimore, Sept. 1 (AP).—Veterans of the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division were arriving in Baltimore today to get set for the division's annual reunion tomorrow.

Some 2000 delegates and guests are expected for the three-day affair.

Maryland and Virginia are the home States of the Blue and Gray Division, veteran of two World Wars, but a convention official said registrations already have come in from various parts of the Nation.

A delegation of more than 1200 is expected from Maryland and Virginia.

James Stevens of Silver Spring, retiring national commander, will preside over the opening business meeting Saturday afternoon.

Fairfax Reform

The growth of Fairfax County's population in both numbers and diversity seems to make imperative a modernization of its form of government. The Board of Supervisors by which the county's affairs are now directed has served it honorably and is made up of devoted and thoroughly well-intentioned citizens. But they are able to give public business only a portion of their time and attention; and they are not experts in public administration. A move in the direction taken by neighboring Arlington County and by Montgomery County across the Maryland State line seems in order.

Fairfax County now has considerably more than twice as many residents as it had a decade ago. And where in 1940 its population was predominantly rural, it has now become in no small measure suburban. Where the bulk of its people used to be engaged in farming, a sizable proportion now commute to work in Washington. The influx is attested by the construction of huge apartment buildings and shopping centers and is certain to be augmented in the immediate future. The county's problems are no longer as simple as they were 10 years ago.

Naturally enough, there is division of opinion in Fairfax County on the course to be pursued. A number of residents, spearheaded apparently by the diligent League of Women Voters, want to adopt a straight county-manager form of government. Some of the older residents are reported to be opposed to any change at all. A third group seems to favor a county executive system as a middle-of-the-road solution. A 21-member commission appointed by the Board of Supervisors is expected shortly to report on the several proposals. We hope that its recommendations will be constructive and realistic and that the elements looking toward a progressive adaptation to the county's changed and changing conditions will not expend their energies in a round of recriminations. The important thing is that the people of Fairfax should have an opportunity to vote on real choices when they go to the polls in November.

Latin-American Help

At last the Pentagon seems to be giving some serious thought to the use in Korea of the military contingents offered by Latin-American nations. It is high time. America as a great power still has to learn how to use other people in the common interest of keeping the peace. To be sure, military help from Latin America sometimes may involve more good will than practicality. In most instances the forces which our neighbors are able to provide would require further training, equipment and supply; it would be suicidal to send them into battle against tanks now. Nonetheless, it is important not to give the Latin Americans a cold shoulder, for the United Nations undertaking in Korea ought to have men from every possible flag and nationality. Here is an instance in which the Latins feel that they can come to the aid of the United States; they have responded willingly to the U. N. call. Nor are all their troops ill-trained; some are superb Indian fighters and judging from the experience in Korea, we could make use of such skill.

Considering the resources available to most Latin-American nations, the list of offers is impressive. Uruguay, for instance, has talked of 2000 trained men; Costa Rica and El Salvador have offered men for training in the United States, and Nicaragua and Honduras have made hints in that direction. In Panama more than 1000 men have volunteered to serve the United States pursuant to a government authorization. Bolivia has offered 30 officers; there have been many volunteers in Colombia; and even in Argentina the American consulates have been crowded. Doubtless there would be further and more precise offers from other nations if they felt that the offers would be accepted.

So far there has been a stock reply, determined by the Pentagon. The United States will be glad to have help, provided that it comes in contingents no smaller than 1000 men and that the country concerned can supply shipping and sustain its forces in the field for 60 days. This is obviously impossible for a small country such as Costa Rica. Another restriction may be seen in the case of the Colombian captain who wished to enlist in the United States Army as a private, but was told that he would have to take out American citizenship papers first.

Now that military men are beginning to acknowledge the need for broadening the base of the forces in Korea, perhaps this red tape can be cut. Certainly there ought to be some way to waive the law on American citizenship for volunteers; during World War II there were many aliens in the Army. As for the larger consideration, it ought to be possible without too much diversion of effort to set up some sort of training and equipment program for Latin-American nations, using shipping from the reserve merchant fleet. Perhaps not many men would be trained in time to see action in Korea; but even the preparation would lend emphasis to the international character of the undertaking, and the closer we get to the thirty-eighth parallel, the more important multinational representation will be. Even if Latin troops could not be used in the battle, they could form a ready nucleus for a United Nations police force.

Chinese Reds

It seems to be clear at last that our policy-makers see as the supreme object of policy in the Far East the avoidance of war with Communist China. If there is one lesson obtainable from Korea, it is that the Marshall policy of of nonintervention in China, once civil war broke out there, was the quintessence of wisdom. The pity is that Secretary Marshall did not offer his resignation when the Republican "isolationists" bulled through, by way of a rider to the initial ECA appropriation, an aid program to Chiang Kai-shek, in flat violation of his counsel. That he accepted the rider was due, doubtless, to his anxiety for prompt enactment of aid-to-Europe. But that is water over the dam, and now we can deduce from experience in Korea the supreme folly to which the "isolationists," with their interventionism, would have committed this country in China.

However, we are not yet out of the woods, and the continued protests from Communist China over the alleged American bombing in North Korea shows the delicacy of the situation. Secretary Acheson has taken the right course in saying that the true facts could be established by the admittance to North Korea of Red Cross observers. Ambassador Austin has virtually admitted that an accident has occurred. It is a ticklish issue, this business of bombing north of the thirty-eighth parallel. General J. F. C. Fuller, the eminent military critic, says "Your bests interests suggest doing the least possible damage by bombing, consistent with victory," particularly, of course, in northern Korea. He was thinking of relations with the Koreans, not relations with the Chinese, also involved by bombing in North Korea, and, if he had known of this complication, his counsel would have been the more urgent. It could even be said that while action south of the line is military, north of the line any military action, including bombing, must be under civilian, i. e., political, control.

All manner of monkey business is possible in the Far East aimed at getting this country entangled in war with mainland China. The Russians want to fight America to the last Korean and when the last Korean is killed to the last Chinese. They don't want, we are convinced, Chinese official intervention in Korea, because they don't want any division of interest with theirs in Korea. But they want Chinese to fight—in an adventure in the Formosa Straits, in a use of the Chinese troops in Manchuria as mercenaries of Soviet Russia. If the Chinese Communists do intervene, then the American reaction must be swift and devastating, for the only motto then for this country would be the Cromwellian one: Neglect no means! In the meantime let us beware of entrance into a quarrel. The whole engagement in the Far East is overwhelmingly political, and we must watch our step lest we get trapped foolishly. The Chinese Communists now can be under no illusion about American policy. It is to maintain peace with them, to answer any aggression with force, and to introduce the U. N. into Formosa.

Drafting Doctors

There is a measure of logic in the bills now emerging from Congress to permit the drafting of doctors, dentists and other specialists during the emergency. The armed forces are seriously short of doctors, and it is proper that the men called first should be those who obtained their specialized education at Government expense but saw little or no military service. In fairness these persons ought to be summoned prior to the reservists who have already put in many months of service. It is quite possible that there will be a large enough pool of young doctors and dentists in this category to avoid a general call on medical reserves at this time.

It is important, however, to maintain some sort of restraint on the conscripting of medical talent, and it is fortunate that the House bill contains a provision for medical advisory committees to consult with local draft boards on inductions. The experience during World War II is a frightening reminder of what could happen without some safeguards. Many a small community was deprived of its medical personnel—sometimes, to be sure, as a result of volunteering—and even in larger cities a heavy burden was often thrown on older doctors scarcely able to carry the load. Meanwhile many a doctor in uniform sat out the war writing reports or performing other administrative duties only remotely connected with his professional skill. It is imperative to see that this waste does not happen again.

Happily, there has been a substantial improvement in the utilization of medical personnel under unification. There is more joint use of hospitals among the services, and there is more effort to fit square pegs into square holes. It is not easy to screen the urgent requests from combat areas, but we hope that the Director of Medical Services and the Armed Forces Medical Advisory Committee will manage to use the test of common sense before such requests are relayed to selective service. There were some glaring defects in the use of skilled manpower during World War II, not only with respect to doctors, but also particularly with respect to young scientists. This time it is vital to balance immediate military needs against the broader long-range welfare of the whole economy.

Spanish Chances

What the President will do about the 62-million-dollar loan to Spain rider has got the Capital agog with speculation. He could, of course, impound the funds. Or he could simply ignore the whole matter, treating the congressional action as a piece of impertinence, altogether in conflict with his presidential prerogatives as the initiator of foreign policy. On both grounds he could amass a lot of support in precedent. Under our Constitution there is always a Philip sober to check a Philip drunk.

The military aspect of the loan, which loomed over Congress when a lot of military men descended on Capitol Hill, was, of course, the determinant of the heavy vote of Congress. But the military are themselves divided. Some are dead set against the loan; others have different views as to its use. Some think in terms of rearming the ill-equipped and relatively untrained Spanish soldiery; others that the loan would buy valuable bases in any struggle for Europe; yet others see in Spain a sure shield for operations in North Africa. But in this matter, surely, first things come first, particularly at this time of day. It is the front line that matters to post-Korean American defense, and that front line is on the Rhine, not back of the Pyrenees. To put the Spanish army in first-class shape, let alone to goad it to fight beyond its frontier, would involve a huge commitment at the expense of more important defense.

Yet, absurdity of absurdities, no conditions are attached to financial aid to Franco. ECA, which supervises assistance in Europe and has the treaty right to insist upon performance and accountability, would merely be the disbursing agent to Franco. It could hope that Franco would do what the American military want him to do. But that would be merely a hope, Franco would yell harder than ever, perhaps, that he is anti-Communist, but that is not much of a help, since he is anti-Communist anyway. For the rest Franco would use the money to prop himself up, not to help the Western powers. He knows, as every historian knows, that Spain, prepared or unprepared, is a grave for any invader. We wonder whether the United States in acting as an ally of Franco would not be regarded as such by the Spanish people along with any actual invader.

Nobody knows; for the simple reason that the Spanish people cannot speak. This is what makes an evaluation of Spain as a sentient entity rather than as a mere block of territory difficult to make. Nobody wants to see Spain set apart as a sort of pariah. The severance of ambassadorial relations with Spain was simply foolish, but the so-called friends of Spain have made any American sponsorship of a restoration of relations almost impossible this year by this effort to rifle the United States Treasury in Franco's behalf.

Johnson's Apologia

The argument about Secretary Johnson's stewardship at the Department of Defense could be endless. Statistics can be so juggled that his economies can be made to look like cuts into muscle or the excision of fat. It all depends upon the way the data are presented or upon strategical prepossession. He doubtless cut into muscle, but he has got rid of a lot of fat, too. Much of the case against him in the country is due to the position he held when the country found itself in a military jam in Korea. Any Defedense Secretary would have been made a scapegoat. It is part of the political game, and in this respect Mr. Johnson stands for the Administration. Some of the criticism, however, is personal. Mr. Johnson has occasionally displayed a braggadocio which when uttered reminded most people at the time of the hot air that Secretary Knox emitted on the eve of Pearl Harbor. Indeed, there were quite a few people who, immediately after Mr. Johnson's smug claims about our readiness and our power, waited for a new Pearl Harbor. It was in the man in the street's mind as soon as the news was flashed around that Korea had been invaded.

Moreover, there is something else that stands on the Johnson record against him. It is not mentioned at all. But there is not the slightest doubt that it plays a part in the indictment. Most newspapermen in town feel he is disingenuous, and almost every one of them has an illustration. He has a reputation of aspersing his own colleagues in the presence of reporters, which is obnoxious. This sort of thing doesn't invite a good press, nor, on broader grounds, does it give any evidence of teamwork. Perhaps the President in his ivory tower fails to realize this, but it is a fact, and when every item in the calendar is canceled out by another item, this is the residue that remains. President Truman is loyal to everybody in his official family who comes under attack, but he ought always to bear in mind that there will be no unity in this country till there is an example of it in his Administration.

SPECTRE OF A FOE

I spoke his name. (A ghost was he.
All moonlight-pale and misty-thin
And still as young as he had been
The time he was at odds with me.)

His eyes met mine. Oh, I could see
Immortal scorn upon his mouth
As he turned north, as I strode south;
And all was as it used to be.

Far Eastern Policy

The forthright reaction of the President to statements of Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews and of Gen. Douglas MacArthur regarding their opinions on the military policies of the United States is most reassuring.

It is certain that such a clarification was imperative. If two leaders high in military strategy were thinking in terms such as their statements indicated, then indeed does a foundation need to be laid for our foreign policy in the Far East, particularly, and for the world in general.

Many of us have watched with some lightening of the heart the increased thoughtfulness and widened scope of effort to take into account the thinking of Oriental peoples that is now going on in many quarters. As contrasted with the assurance that a quick and clear-cut settlement might come about in Korea through military resistance alone, there now seems to be a tendency to think in longer terms of how the real unification of the Korean people may come about; of how best the people of China may create a salvation for themselves through their traditional individualism; of what the friendship of India among the Asiatic nations signifies to us. Respect for the proposals of Sir Benegal Rau, who represents India at the Security Council; the invitation to have the United States policy as regards Formosa studied, as presented by Ambassador Warren Austin, are other indications of the same growth into a more mature attitude.

A plan for Korea, a plan for China, a plan for Japan are all obligatory and none can be divorced from the others. The President has laid a cornerstone for these by discarding certain possibilities. What is needed now, it would seem, is even greater awareness of what our friends in the Orient should be able to count upon from us; an appreciation of the fact that every means of canceling out the appeal of communism to destitute peoples, through better and more realistic improvement of their conditions by our economic aid and moral support, leads toward peace. We have to see that peace is not an act, but a condition. It is achieved not by declaration, but by growth of those elements which produce it. The understanding and planning which it requires rest not only on our leaders, but on each of us. For, unfortunately, freedom has its price in responsibility, and democracy never comes at a bargain.

Preparedness

In any future conflict we would undoubtedly have to send food overseas to our Allies. Would it not be pertinent to ship some of our great surpluses now for overseas storage? Bottoms would be more easily available now than later, and the sea lanes are still unobstructed.

Pursuing the same thought, both we and our Allies—the Atlantic Pact nations anyway—still need lots of strategic materials for our stockpiles—and actual production needs. Are we getting them at the maximum possible level now while no hostile wolfpacks of submarines are on the high seas? Or have we forgotten the recent lessons of thousands of lost lives, endless tons of sunken ships and millions of tons and dollars of scarce materials sent to the bottom.

Gettysburg Anniversary

November 19, 1950, will mark exactly four score and seven years since President Lincoln delivered his address at the dedication of the cemetery at Gettysburg.

In these difficult days, as trying as those of 1776 and 1863, it is especially important that we keep in mind the continuity and the grandeur of our history and the clarity of national purpose so well embodied in the Gettysburg address.

It would, I think, be fitting if the Congress, during its present session, were to insure that the approaching historic anniversary of the Gettysburg address be properly commemorated on Sunday, November 19, 1950, at Gettysburg and throughout the Nation.

Arab Refugees

Mr. A. M. Ramadan, in his letter of August 22, states that "neither Egypt nor the other Arab states conducted any war of aggression in Palestine." The Secretary General of the United Nations, among others, is of a different opinion. In his report for the period July 1, 1947, to June 30, 1948, he describes the developments as follows:

"Last November (1947) the General Assembly, at its second regular session, adopted, by the necessary two-thirds majority, a recommendation for the partition of Palestine between Arab and Jewish states. . . . The Arab states refused to accept the recommendation and declared that they would oppose by force any attempt to impose its terms. . . . Meanwhile, the mandate came to an end on May 15 (1948) in accordance with the decision of the mandatory power. The Jews, at that moment, proclaimed the state of Israel within the limits of the boundaries recommended by the General Assembly. Armed forces of the Arab League states then moved across the borders of Palestine."

Mr. Ramadan speaks of "one million refugees." The United Nations Economic Survey Mission for the Middle East, headed by Mr. Gordon Clapp, chairman of the Tennessee Authority, pointed out in its report that the total number of refugees could at the utmost be 652,000, although the Arab refugees were not driven out of Israel. They left their homes on the orders of the Arab leaders, who promised then that they would divide the spoils of victory, Jewish land and Jewish property, among them. In many cases, Arabs left their homes before the arrival of the invaders, and, therefore, before any fighting started; in the main, Palestine Arabs were the last who wanted to fight.

The Arab states till this day have refused every offer, both by Israel and by the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission, to negotiate a permanent peace settlement which alone can provide the framework for a solution of the refugee problem.

Germany As An Ally

Professor Butterfield of Cambridge University, in his book Christianity and History reminds us that after the Napoleonic wars the British were so convinced that the French always would be the aggressors and enemies of mankind that they insisted on installing a strong but unwilling Prussia on the Rhineland. May not a similar theory about the Germans now lead us into equally great mistakes to our own ruin?

One reason for refusing to allow Germany to arm in self-defense is the popular belief that Germany was solely responsible for all the wars of 1870, 1914 and 1939. Leading historians such as Temparley and Butterfield show that this belief is not justified.

A second reason is that an armed Germany was too powerful for the peace of the world. In view of the present Russian and American strength, this reason no longer holds good.

As regards the balance of forces in Europe, Professor Butterfield says: "There is good historical precedent for the thesis that if two rival clients are offering an alternate threat to the existing order of things on the continent and if you are unwilling to let the rascals fight it out by themselves, choose carefully the time of your intervention in their struggle and see that you intervene only in order to save whichever of the two it may be from being destroyed by the other." In 1939 Germany and Russia were the rival giants and in destroying Germany, we upset the balance of power. The lesson of history is clear that we should restore it as soon as possible.

No one would wish to condone the cruelties and oppressions of the Nazis during the war any more than those of the Bolsheviks before 1939 but neither all the German nor all the Russian people could be convicted of those cruelties. If we were able to accept the Russians as allies while those responsible for the cruelties were in control of Russia, should we not even more easily accept the Germans as allies now that the cruel leaders have been removed?

Peace Or War

Senator McMahon cannot be considered a sentimental idealist. As chairman of the Congressional Joint Atomic Energy Committee he is fully informed on the realities that confront us. Yet he has just declared that halting the world armament race is an even greater problem of our day than winning the conflict in Korea. Note that his statement implies the possibility of changing over from a war system to a peace system.

Many take the former system so much for granted that they do not realize the existence of this possibility—although this is the only one available that offers any hope of a life worth living.

McMahon furthermore said: "If we put the issue of war or peace squarely on the Kremlin's doorstep, where it belongs, we can win the peace."

An excellent opportunity to put it on that doorstep now exists. Our administration could accept Nehru's plan for mediation and agree to abide by the decision of the mediators, providing that Russia would make a similar agreement.

If not speedily mediated, the conflagration in Korea will burst out in Formosa, the Philippines, and elsewhere. And meanwhile some of our high-ranking officers advocate attacking Russia.

All this is madness! Let us demand prompt mediation.

Merchants Of Confusion

Clack Mobilizes

THE FAMILIAR phrase "lag on the home front" explained the sudden arrival here yesterday by private helicopter of Jitters McDervish Clack, promotion director of the National Non-Thinkers' League.

"Do you mean," hopefully began a reporter, "that you're here to get faster mobilization, more all-out sacrifice, more active defense planning?"

"I mean," interrupted Mr. Clack, "that we're not getting this Korean war commercialized fast enough. We've got to step on the gas." The nervous, dapper visitor paused to adjust his portable video to a scene from the battlefront.

"Not enough war action coming into our living rooms!" he exclaimed. "The advertisers are overlooking a big bet. One fifth of all city homes now have television. Just think what progress since 1861! Then Washingtonians had to ride out 30 miles by horse and buggy, and take picnic lunches, to see the Battle of Bull Run. What's more, they had to run home in a rout. Now you can sit safely in your living room and not miss a thing."

"But isn't your Non-Thinkers' League trying to keep people from thinking about public matters? asked a radio pundit.

"Sure, I didn't say anything about 'thinking.'" retorted Mr. Clack as he tuned in his pocket radio to a rapid-fire newscast. "My racket—or rather my system—is to keep enough going on so that people won't have to think—or even act."

"DOES THAT hold for Congress?" he was asked.

"What would you say? No, I don't have to worry about Congress. Campaign brawling will take care of it for awhile."

The visitor lighted a cigarette with a sound wave. "Things are too dead here," he complained. "Not enough big butter and egg men crowding the hotels. Not enough five percenters, contact men, blondes looking for steak dinners."

"Government buying's been decentralized through a system of regional offices," explained a reporter. "Five percenters have been outlawed."

Mr. Clack laughed derisively. "Just wait till the big contracts get under way! That reminds me. I must step up your night club life here. There'll soon be a lot of fellows in town on big expense accounts."

"Taxes may put a crimp on some of that madhouse stuff this time," spoke up a woman reporter.

"Taxes! You forget there's an election coming up."

"WHAT IS your plan of strategy," asked a Pentagon newsman, "on what is laughingly called the home front?"

"Well, first I'm putting megaphones in the hands of every news vendor to step up the downtown racket. Then I'm starting a school for news broadcasters. Some of 'em are pretty hot now, but mostly they need pepping up. I want more excitement, tension, breathlessness. Make listeners feel the Korean Reds are marching up the alley.

"Then we've got to get these war broadcasts haranguing people everywhere. I have an invention for a telephone booth. The broadcasting goes on together with the light as you open the door."

"Is it your idea to duplicate the battlefront here?"

"In noise, yes. As always. I'm promoting more blowing of motor horns, more rumbling of trucks, screeching of brakes. Now if we can get the factory whistles blowing and the church bells ringing oftener, excitement will pick-up."

"My plans also include," continued Mr. Clack, "bigger headlines in newspapers, more war excitement in magazines, more Korean tie-ups with merchandise, oh yes, and a big step-up in parties. I'm counting on a humdinger of a social season this fall, a sort of Paris-in-the spring——"

"A last stand before 1951 taxes," supplemented a fiscal correspondent.

"Mr. Clack," said a science reporter, "has it occurred to you that things are different now from 1941? People remember the last war—at least those who fought it do. Those who are fighting the Korean war, and those who will have to fight whatever others may develop, may not be willing to stand for so many owing so much to so few—or for any home front hoopla. What's more, in the back of everyone's mind is the A-bomb, even the H-bomb. People are beginning to think."

"They won't be long?" broke in Mr. Clack. "Not after I get the Confusion Front organized."

Freed War Criminals

As a veteran of the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division, I am aroused and angry to hear of the American Military Government's freeing "former Nazi" war crimials. No mention of the Nazis' reeducation, if any. Nothing about the thousands of GIs killed and wounded because of their criminal Fascist conspiracy.

The only explanation for their release is that the "former Nazis" hate Communists as much as Communists hate them. It is time, I believe, to examine our Government's policies, especially in regard to the AMG's recent action. "Anything Communists are for we are against!" Or vice versa. Is this official American policy in the 5-year-old "cold war"?

M'Arthur Difficulties

By Marquis Childs

Bismarck Sea Controversy

OF ALL THE angry controversies between General MacArthur and the top military men directing World War II in the Pentagon, perhaps none was as bitter as that over the outcome of the battle of the Bismarck Sea. That controversy may be revived by an official Air Force history shortly to be released.

Childs

The incident strikingly illustrates the difficult relationship between Washington and the general, who has become a proconsul for America in Asia. President Truman recently discovered these difficulties for himself in a row that seemed to pit MacArthur, as a soldier, against politicians and diplomats. During the last war it was MacArthur against other military commanders, notably Admiral Chester Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet, with whom relations were, to put it mildly, strained.

Military historians, with access to files still classified, have long debated the Bismarck Sea battle. After that battle MacArthur claimed that B-17's under his Southwest Pacific Command, had sunk 22 transports and destroyers out of a Japanese convoy, with a loss of not less than 20,000 Jap troops.

AIR FORCE headquarters in Washington made a careful study of this claim. In addition to all the material available at MacArthur's headquarters, they had intelligence reports obtained through the breaking of the Jap code. Their conclusion was that probably not more than 14 ships were sunk out of a convoy that never included more than 16 vessels. The loss of life was put as much less than MacArthur's estimate.

This called for a series of angry telegrams from MacArthur's headquarters. One of these telegrams signed by MacArthur suggested that those responsible for rating down the victory should be subjected to possible punishment by a court-martial.

Air Force headquarters braved MacArthur's anger, and stuck to its estimate of losses in the Bismarck Sea battle. The official Air Force history is also reported to stand on this version.

But MacArthur, in September of 1945, in one of the most interesting direct quote interviews he has ever granted, repeated his original claim. He said the Japanese had lost 22 ships and 100 planes in what he described as the "decisive aerial engagement" in his theater of the war. "Some people have doubted the figure in that battle, but we have the names of every ship sunk," MacArthur told the reporter.

There are those, and they include some of MacArthur's sincere admirers, who explain this side of the general by references to the men around him. They tend to become hero-worshippers. Their hero-worship is actually a disservice to MacArthur, since it obscures the real qualities that make him a great man and, in the years in Japan, a force for peace and stability of incomparable value to his country.

THIS CONTRIBUTION can be lost sight of if MacArthur becomes a center of political controversy, exploited for selfish ends by some politicians. After 14 years out of the United States the General may have forgotten how fierce and now indiscriminate are the political currents running in an election this year.

The Republican Party intends to make its own use of MacArthur in the congressional campaign. This could be helpful to the party. But, whether it will, in the longer perspective of history, be helpful to the general, is another matter.

General MacArthur allowed himself to be exploited in the campaign year of 1948. He permitted his name to be entered in the Republican primary in Wisconsin. MacArthur ran a poor second to Harold Stassen.

But the most unhappy consequence came in Philadelphia. At the Republican convention the chief contenders for the nomination saw sure victory for the nominee. They were not in the mood to stand aside for a military hero.

Yet MacArthur's admirers persisted in putting his name before the convention, and few who sat through that hot night, in that sparsely filled convention hall, will forget the pathos of it. On the first ballot MacArthur got 11 votes, eight from Wisconsin, two from Iowa and one from Kentucky. On the second ballot this dropped to seven, and the MacArthur flurry was over.

This surely did not add to the general's stature, nor did it make easier his task of governing Japan. If the war in Korea is localized and the peace is kept in Asia, MacArthur's place in history could be larger than that of any of the fighting generals. He has so much more to gain from a stable peace based on strength and security than from a war among the peoples with whom he has lived for so long.

Senate Votes New Tax Bill

Exemption for Troops

4. GIs and officers serving in Korea and other combat areas designated by the President would get an income tax exemption. GIs would be exempt from all Federal taxes and officers would be allowed $200 a month tax free, for actual time in the combat zones.

5. To encourage productions of arms, corporations would be permitted to amortize the cost of defense plants and other facilities certified as essential to the war effort over a five-year period, for tax purposes. The normal depreciation period is 15 to 30 years.

6. To round out the 4.5-billion-dollar revenue total, the bill plugged a number of so-called "loopholes." One of the more important requires educational and charitable institutions to pay regular corporate tax rates on unrelated business activities.

Drive for More Revenue Made

Defeat of the O'Mahoney-Connally excess profits tax rider touched off a drive to add more revenue to the bill, but the effort was short-lived.

Senators Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) and Humphrey send amendments to the desk designed to lift corporation and individual assessments some 2.5 billion above the shouted them down.

committee level. The Senate

The two Senators then tried to plug some of the "loopholes" the committee failed to touch, asking retroactive taxation of 1947 and 1948 Life Insurance company earnings, tax withholding on dividends, and a crackdown on "family partnerships." These and other amendments were defeated like clockwork.

The last real barrier to final pasage was hurdled in mid-afternoon when the Senate tabled, 52 to 2, an amendment by Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) to suspend the tariff of 2 cents per pound on copper.

The tariff, suspended during World War II to encourage importation of copper for rearmament purposes, and extended on a temporary basis since, automatically went back on the books on July 1.

East, Mining Bloc Clash

A bloc of Senators from Western mining states had indicated they would debate the bill indefinitely if the McMahon amendment, lifting the tariff was approved.

Senators from most New England manufacturing States, where industrial copper is in heavy demand, clashed with the mining bloc. McMahon told the Senate domestic copper can't begin to meet rearmament demands and the tariff should be lifted now just as it was in World War II.

Once the copper amendment was sidetracked Lucas ordered the Senate into night session, serving notice it would continue in session until it passed the bill.

With a three-day Senate recess over Labor Day as a tempting reward, the Senate needed no further prodding.

Excess Tax Fight "Not Over"

The profits tax compromise served to change enough votes to check an upsurge of Senate sentiment for taxing surplus earnings immediately, but Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) declared: "The fight is not over."

He called on House-Senate tax conferees to reopen the question in conference and suggested the House might yet act. An excess profits tax discharge petition circulated by Representaive Walter B. Huber (D., Ohio) had 101 signatures yesterday. To force House vote 218 signatures are required.

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) joined Senator O'Mahoney in the unsuccessful drive to tax "above normal" corporate profits immediately.

Both agued that with rearmament outlays constantly mounting the Administration's tax bill is already a "deficit" bill. They told colleagues that dollars as well as manpower must be drafted for the war in Korea.

The compromise amendment, putting off a profits tax decision until 1951, was jointly offered by Senate Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) and Senator Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.).

Binding Congress, at least morally, to take up an excess profits tax early next year, and make it retroactive to October 1 or July 1, 1950, the compromise was first passed by a voice vote.

O'Mahoney moved for reconsideration of the vote and a roll call was ordered. Twenty-one Democrats joined 21 Republicans in supporting the compromise. Twenty-six Democrats voted with 10 Republicans against it.

Connally bitterly denounced the compromise as a "continuing motion" designed to defeat excess profits taxation by the process of delay. He told Senators who said they favored taxing profits: "You've voted your chance away."

"You can't put off the Korean war," he told the Senate.

George and Millikin contended the O'Mahoney-Connally rider was faultily drawn, and would tax many corporations unjustly. They said a four months' study by congressional and Treasury staff experts will come up with an equitable tax base in time for action next year.

Red Cross To Sell House

Washington September 15 at 10 a. m. to discuss how to sell the mansion and its elaborate furnishings.

Preliminary Study Made

The real estate division of the Manufacturers Trust Co. has already evaluated the home and land and a New York firm has made a preliminary study of the furnishings, Presnell K. Betts, ARC comptroller, disclosed yesterday.

The lengthy court suit brought by Mrs. Patterson's daughter, Mrs. Felicia Gizycka, ended early in 1949 with a tax-free lump settlement of $400,000 to the daughter. The bequest to the Red Cross was not disturbed by the settlement agreement.

The Red Cross comptroller said no plans have been made yet as to whether the property and furnishings will go on the auction block or be transferred by private negotiations. He said, however, that present thinking is that if a buyer cannot be found for the entire lot of furnishings, the auction method probably will be used.

Included in the furnishings are such items as a semi antique agra rug appraised at $4745 and a 193-piece Crown Derby dinner service valued at $1746.

Bar Group Investigating

The District Bar Association has appointed a committee, headed by Attorney William A. Roberts, to investigate the possibility of purchasing the residence as headquarters for the group.

The District Red Cross chapter's new home will bring three subdivisions under one roof.

At present, the chapter headquarters at 1730 E st. nw. contains the blood center, administrative offices, campaign headquarters, administrative section of the volunteer services, the motor corps and disaster relief headquarters. When the new structure is completed, this space will revert to the national organization.

A second section is operated at the Walsh House, 21st st. and Massachusetts ave. nw., loaned to the Red Cross by the McLean Estate. The units housed there include educational, water safety, accident prevention, surgical dressings, classrooms for arts and skills, entertainment for service hospitals, nursing training, nutrition and the Junior Red Cross headquarters.

The third unit is located on the E st. side of Corcoran Art Gallery, which has loaned the space to the Red Cross. The Home Service section there handles an average of 1500 to 2000 families a month, giving financial and other aid.

The new structure, according to Nat C. Wilson, chapter manager, will permit continuation of the present activities and expansion to meet future needs. Ground will be broken late this fall and construction is expected to be completed in 18 months Wilson said.

The last of the 61 families formerly residing on the building site was relocated late last month.

Switchmen Get 23 Cents, End Dispute

By The Associated Press

The White House last night announced settlement of a long wage dispute between the AFL Switchmen's Union and 10 Western railroads.

The agrement calls for a 23-cent hourly wage increase. It is expected to have an influence on a parallel controversy between the Nation's railroads and the trainmen and conductors' unions.

The latter dispute resulted in a strike call and seizure last Sunday of the railroads by the Government to prevent tying up the lines. The trainmen and conductors are asking for 48 hours' pay for a 40-hour week for yard workers and wage adjustments for those in train service.

Approximately 5000 switchmen would receive the concession agreed upon in the office of Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman. They are:

A 23-cent hourly wage increase;

A three-year moratorium on further changes in wages or working conditions except for a quarterly adjustment based on the cost-of-living index. With every percentage point rise in the Government's index of consumer prices, kept by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the switchmen's hourly earnings would go up 1 cent.

A five-day week is agreed upon in principle, but it will be set aside for at least one year, and thereafter will be subject "to the desires of the employes and the manpower situation."

During the interim period, yard men may work six days a week at straight time but, if required to work on the seventh day, would receive time and a half.

6000 Wallpaper Workers Begin Strike

New York, Sept. 1 (AP).—A strike began at wall paper factories across the Eastern half of the Nation today.

Some plants, closed for vacations were not immediately affected.

But at others, production stopped as workers walked out and took up places on picket lines.

The stoppage began officially last midnight when the industry-wide contract with the AFL Wall Paper Craftsmen and Workers Union expired.

The union claimed plants producing 96 percent of the country's wall paper, and some 6000 workers were involved.

Contract renewal talks hit a stump over the union's demand for benefits totalling 20 cents hourly, including pension, welfare, holiday and vacation improvements. A union attorney said the Wall Paper Institute, representing employers, had offered a 10-cent wage increase.

Walkouts Hamper Ford, Close Kaiser-Frazer

Detroit, Sept. 1 (AP).—Wildcat walkouts for pay increases closed down Kaiser-Frazer Corp. and hampered production at the Ford Motor Co. today.

The Hudson Motor Car Co., meanwhile, became the latest to fall in line with the auto industry's pattern of raising wages above existing contracts. It gave its 20,000 workers seven cents more an hour.

Kaiser-Frazer's plant at Willow Run was closed at 11 a. m. and workers told to report back Tuesday. Pickets had closed the plant at midnight last night but permitted day shift workers to enter at 8 a. m. However, K-F said failure of many to report in some departments forced the shut-down. K-F employs a total of 11,500.

man seated at a desk, flanked by the Stars and Stripes and the Presidential Flag, with the seal of his office in the background. He spoke with deliberation and appeared to have conquered his old habit of "racing."

Korean Reds Face Defeat

Taking up the conflict in Korea, he said in effect that the Communist armies had shot their bolt and now faced defeat.

"The enemy is spending his strength recklessly in desperate attacks," Mr. Truman said. "We believe the invasion has reached its peak. The task remaining is to crush it. Our men are confident, the United Nations command is confident, that it will be crushed. The power to do this is being gathered in Korea."

Although Mr. Truman didn't go into it, the expansion of the Army, Navy and Air Force to nearly 3,000,000 would obviously mean larger draft calls and the calling up of National Guard divisions and more reserves. If the figure reached 3,000,000 or went higher, it probably would mean an amendment of the Selective Service law to permit the drafting of World War II veterans.

Sees It as Program for Peace

Mr. Truman, it was learned, looked upon last night's address as a program for peace. It was a program for peace through strength, the mighty potential of this country together with the manpower and resources of its allies abroad.

He said:

"In Western Europe alone, there are over 200 million people. Next to ours, their industry is the world's greatest workshop. They are joining with us to develop collective forces for mutual defense—our defense as well as their own.

"The armed forces of the United States are a key element in the strength of the free world. In view of the threats of aggression which now face us, we shall have to increase these forces and we shall have to maintain larger forces for a long time to come.

"We have had about one and a half million men and women on active duty in our Army, Navy and Air Force. Our present plans call for increasing this number to close to three million, and further increases may be required.

Produce More Weapons

"In addition to increasing the size of our armed forces, we must step up sharply the production of guns, tanks, planes and other military equipment. We shall also have to increase our stockpile of essential materials, and expand our capacity to produce military supplies.

"We have the ability and the resources to meet the demands which confront us. Our industry and agriculture have never been stronger or more productive. We will use as much of this economic strength as is needed to defend ourselves and establish peace.

"Hitler and the Japanese generals miscalculated badly, ten years ago, when they thought we would not be able to use our economic power effectively for the defeat of aggression.

"Let would-be aggressors make no such mistake today."

"Why" We Are in Korea

Mr. Truman said at the outset that he wanted to talk about Korea—"about why we are there, and what our objectives are." He said that no cause was ever more just or important. For the first time in all history, he pointed out, men of many nations are fighting under a single banner to uphold the rule of law in the world.

"If the rule of law is not upheld," he said, "we can look forward only to the horror of another world war and ultimate chaos. For our part, we do not intend to let that happen."

When Communist imperialism turned from the familiar tactics of infiltration and subversion to a brutal attack on the Republic of Korea, he said, the free and peace-loving nations of the world faced two possible courses.

"One course would have been to limit our action to diplomatic protests, while the Communist aggressors went ahead and swallowed up their victim. That would have been the course of appeasement. If the history of the 1930's teaches us anything, it is that appeasement of dictators is the sure road to world war. If aggression were allowed to succeed in Korea, it would be an open invitation to new acts of aggression elsewhere.

"The other course is the one which the free world chose. The United Nations made its historic decision to meet military aggression with armed force. The effects of that decision will be felt far beyond Korea. The firm action taken by the United Nations is our best hope of achieving world peace."

The Chief Executive said that more men were on their way to Korea, including those of nations not yet in the fray. He gave particular praise to the South Koreans, and in talking about the Americans, alluded to the days when he was Captain Truman of Battery D.

"Our men have fought with grim gallantry," he said. "All of us, especially those of us who are old soldiers, know how worthy they are of a place on that long and honored roll of those who created and preserved liberty for our country."

Mr. Truman, as he had done before, tore into the record of the Soviet Union, recounting its broken promises, its gobbling up of its neighbors, and its two-faced policy of preaching peace and practicing aggression.

By contrast, he cited the record of the United States in trying to rehabilitate the world and bring about peace.

Lasts Aims and Hopes

After promising to make another talk soon on what has to be done at home, he listed for the eyes of the world the following aims and hopes of the United States:

"First: We believe in the United Nations. When we ratified its Charter, we pledged ourselves to seek peace and security through this world organization. We kept our word when we went to the support of the United Nations in Korea two months ago. We shall never go back on that pledge.

"Second: We believe the Koreans have a right to be free, independent, and united—as they want to be. Under the direction and guidance of the United Nations, we with others, will do our part to help them enjoy that right. The United States has no other aim in Korea.

Third: We do not want the fighting in Korea to expand into a general war. It will not spread unless Communist imperialism draws other armies and governments into the fight of the aggressors of the United Nations.

Wants China at Peace

"Fourth: We hope in particular that the people of China will not be misled or forced into fighting against the United Nations and against the American people, who have always been and still are their friends. Only the Communist imperialism, which has already started to dismember China, could gain from China's involvement in war.

"Fifth: We do not want Formosa or any part of Asia for ourselves. We believe that the future of Formosa, like any other territory in dispute, should be settled by international action, and not be the decision of the United States or of any other state alone. The mission of the Seventh Fleet is to keep Formosa out of the conflict. Our purpose is peace, not conquest.

"Sixth: We believe in freedom for all the nations of the Far East. That is one of the reasons why we are fighting under the United Nations for the freedom of Korea. We helped the Philippines become independent and we have supported the national aspirations to independence of other Asian countries. Russia has never voluntarily given up any territory it has acquired in the Far East; it has never given independence to any people who have fallen under its control. We not only want freedom for the peoples of Asia, but we also want to help them secure for themselves better health, more food, better clothes and homes, and the chance to live their own lives in peace. The things we want for the people of Asia are the same things we want for the people of the rest of the world.

Arm Only for Defense

"Seventh: We do not believe in aggressive or preventive war. Such war is the weapon of dictators, not of free democratic countries like the United States. We are arming only for defense against aggression. Even though Communist imperialism does not believe in peace, it can be discouraged from new aggression if we and other free peoples are strong, determined, and united.

Eighth: We want peace and we shall achieve it. Our men are fighting for peace today in Korea. We are working for peace constantly in the United Nations and in all the capitals of the world. Our workers, our farmers, our business men, all our vast resources, are helping now to create the strength which will make peace secure.

"We want peace not only for its own sake but because we want all the peoples of the world, including ourselves, to be free to devote their full energies to making their lives richer and happier. We shall give what help we can to make this universal human wish come true.

"We invite all the nations of the world, without exception, to join with us in this great work.

Misery and Horrors of War

"The events in Korea have shown us again all the misery and horrors of war. The North Koreans have learned that the penalties of armed conflict fall as heavily on those who act as tools for the Communist dictatorship as they do on its victims. There will be no profit for any people who follow the Communist dictatorship down its dark and bloody path.

"Against the futile and tragic course of dictatorship, we uphold, for all people, the way of freedom—the way of mutual cooperation and international peace. We assert that mankind can find progress and advancement along the path of peace. At this critical hour in the history of the world, our country has been called upon to give of its leadership, its efforts and its resources, to maintain peace and justice among nations. We have responded to that call. We will not fail.

"The task which has fallen upon our beloved country is a great one. In carrying it out, we ask God to purge us of all selfishness and meanness, and to give us strength and courage for the days ahead."

that. The position of the freedom-loving nations of the world is tremendously strengthened by the existence of the U. N."

The Thomas subcommittee declined to approve any of a long list of Charter-changing resolutions submitted to it during nine days of hearings last February. These called, among other things, for the first steps toward world government and Atlantic federal union, and for the immediate summoning of a conference to revise the U. N. Charter.

May Have Underestimated

But the testimony showed, according to the subcommittee, that the State Department "may have underestimated the willingness of the American people to accept the burdens that go with the position of leadership in the free world."

"The committee has little doubt," the report said, "but that if the American people are well informed, are aware of the possible consequences of action or inaction, they will respond to the needs of the hour."

The full Foreign Relations Committee received the subcommittee report yesterday, but Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said no action was necessary. The subcommittee's findings, summarizing and analyzing arguments for and against the various resolutions, will be printed as a Senate document.

these powers, it was as nothing compared to the debate on the additional authority granted the President which he did not ask for.

Wages, Prices, Rationing

This is the power to fix wages, set price ceilings and ration goods to consumers. As provided in the law, it gives the President considerable freedom to choose what items he wishes to control, until there are ceilings over a substantial part of the economy. Then he must shoot the works with an overall wage and price freeze.

Actually, however, Administration economists see no likelihood of exercising any price or wage controls for many months.

Also, and more important, they privately admit the present law must necessarily be an interim measure. They think it will do nicely for the program at hand and in prospect. But if that program comes close to total mobilization, it is believed the present legislation must be scrapped and far-more-drastic provisions substituted for it.

The President's Calling List

Washington would be accomplished.

All in all 35,000 to 40,000 Government workers should be affected, among them some defense employes to be hired shortly.

Administration hopes were that the money would be included in the supplemental appropriations bill. This measure has passed the House and is before the Senate committee.

Representative Albert Thomas (D., Tex.), who heads the House subcommittee which heard Larson, said the program should go before a legislative committee.

Yesterday, Representative George A. Dondero (R., Mich.), ranking Republican member of the House Public Works Committee, which presumably would consider enabling legislation on decentralization, said:

"I doubt if very much will be done about it."

Senate Appropriations Committee member William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) said yesterday that dispersal is necessary—but perhaps not merely in Washington alone. As for the specific program presented by the Administration, he wondered "whether it is the best thing that can be done or is merely pulled out of a hat to show something is being done on civilian defense."

Another factor, said Knowland, is "the degree of urgency."

A Bureau of the Budget official said it was planned to have the project completed in 18 months.

"That would mean,' he went on, "that the Senate would have to act immediately, which certainly doesn't seem likely now.

"The Congress would have to pass it after an hour's discussion. But the project is more complex than that."

Understanding Asked For Labor's Problems

An appeal to church people for "sympathetic understanding of labor's problems and aspirations" was issued yesterday by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

The federation said in its annual "Labor Sunday Message":

". . . too few church people are familiar with the struggle of organized labor to raise standards of living for its members, their families and all workers . . . or how (labor's) cooperative spirit has helped to advance human welfare . . . and of labor's contribution to industrial progress and peace through collective bargaining."

The message is distributed for use in churches and community groups on Sunday, September 3.

Church groups are urged "to make more vigorous application of Christian principles to economic life" and "to appreciate more fully labor's contribution to industrial welfare."

"To stress the value of Christian brotherhood and cooperation on Sunday, while we live under less exacting standards during the week, creates inner spiritual conflict . . . and moral decay. . . .

"As Christians we must recognize Christ as Lord and Master over every department of life, whether we are employers or employes, housewives or farmers. . . ."

The message said that workers, as their income and security increases, "become more interested in personal expression and recognition. They want to be more than a number on an assembly line or a unit in the cost of business."

The message also rejected the theory that "unemployment and hunger are inevitable any more than war is inevitable. Man can live even in want and adversity, but no man can live nobly who is responsible for keeping another in that condition."

At Luncheon

J. W. Boehne To Address Lutherans

Boehne

One of America's outstanding Lutheran laymen, former Representative John W. Boehne, jr., from the Eighth District in Indiana, will address the monthly luncheon meeting of the Lutheran Laymen Fellowship Thursday.

His topic will be "A Layman's Viewpoint on Christian Fellowship," to be given at 12:30 p. m. at the Ambassador Hotel, 1412 K st. nw.

Boehne is on the advisory committee of Valparaiso University, a member of the board of directors of the Missouri Synod and president of his congregation, the Calvary Lutheran Church, Silver Spring.

Service Today

Washington Sanitarium Dedication

The official opening of the $120,000 Washington Sanitarium and Hospital Chapel Building will take place at 3 p. m. today.

Elder William H. Branson, newly-elected president of the World General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, will be the chief speaker at the opening ceremonies.

The building, which has been under construction for the past year-and-a-half, will be used for worship services of the Washington Sanitarium Church congregation. Visiting patients, also, will use it as a spiritual retreat at the daily vesper period in the late afternoon.

Located at the south end of the main Washington Sanitarium building, Carroll ave. Takoma Park, it will be called a chapel and not a church.

The main auditorium of the building holds 450 people. This includes a balcony and a side auditorium especially constructed for wheel-chair worshippers. A glass-enclosed mothers' room is provided at the rear of the chapel. Several smaller rooms will house the pastor's study and Sabbath school classrooms.

The chapel will also be used as a center of recreational activities for the nurses of the Washington Sanitarium School of Nursing. A large recreational room has been provided in the basement.

Others who will participate in the opening service today are Dr. Robert A. Hare, medical director for the sanitarium; J. H. Nies, business manager of the institution; Elder Ernest D. Dick, secretary of the General Conference; C. H. Kelly, secretary treasurer of the Columbia Union Conference, and Elder H. J. Detwiler, president of the local conference.

Elder Chester Westphal, pastor of the sanitarium church congregation, will preside at the service. A special musical program will precede the ceremonies; an open house will follow.

Cathedral Preachers College Begins 21st Year Sept. 25

Approximately 3000 — or over half of the Episcopal clergy in the United States—have at some time attended Washington Cathedral's College of Preachers.

On September 25, the school will open for its 21st year of providing post-ordination training for members of the Episcopal clergy.

During the academic year, nearly 500 ministers will attend the 16 five-day "workshop session." The ministers are selected by their bishops from dioceses all over the country.

From the Washington Diocese during the fall term are expected five rectors. They are: the Rev. F. W. Blackwelder, All Souls' Memorial Church, Cathedral ave. and Woodley pl. nw.; the Rev. Dillard H. Brown, St. Luke's Church, 15th and Church sts. nw.; the Rev. Berry B. Simpson, Esther Memorial Church, Nicholas ave. and Esther pl. se.; the Rev. Francis M. Hamilton, Grace Church, Silver Spring, and the Rev. W. Robert Miller, Ascension Church, Silver Spring.

Training for the "teaching ministry" will again be emphasized, college officials said, following the plan inaugurated last year under joint sponsorship of the College and the National Council's Department of Education.

The courses will be conducted by the faculty, under the direction of its warden, Dr. Theodore C. Wedel, and by the staff of the National Department, supervised by its director, the Rev. John Heuss, D. D.

Courses include such topics as audio-visual aids, parent and home cooperation, the teaching pastorate and the teaching pulpit, Dr. Wedel said.

A well-used facility of the college is its library. Ministers who come for the one-week courses have the opportunity for more extensive work. An active mailing list is kept by the library, and books are sent each month to over 2000 who have attended the college.

A rambling stone ivy-clad structure, set in the hillside below the giant pinnacles of the Cathedral, it is a bit reminiscent of English colleges. Its location is Wisconsin and Massachusetts aves. nw.

First Sermon

New Rector To Preach At St. Paul's

The Rev. C. Julian Bartlett will begin his rectorship of St. Paul's (Episcopal) Church, Rock Creek Parish, Webster and Rock Creek Church rds. nw., on Sunday at 8:30 a. m. He will celebrate Holy Communion, and at 11 a. m. give his first sermon.

Mr. Bartlett

Mr. Bartlett, who comes to Washington from New Orleans, where he was associate rector of St. Paul's Church, succeeds the Rev. Charles W. Wood, who resigned in April after being assistant and rector for the past 10 years.

The new rector graduated from Tulane University with a bachelor of engineering degree in chemical engineering in 1935. For three years he was employed by a Pittsburgh chemical firm. He later became president of his father's firm, Bartlett Chemicals, Inc., of New Orleans.

In 1946, after World War II service in the Coast Guard, Mr. Bartlett was accepted as a postulant for holy orders. He was ordained to the diaconate, December 19, 1948, and to the priesthood, July 2, 1949.

His church work, parochial and diocesan, has covered a wide area, both as an active layman and priest. For nine years he was an active vestryman of St. Paul's Church in New Orleans, and secretary of the parish. His activities also included work as a lay reader when he became chairman of the Diocesan Lay Readers Association.

Nelson, of the Augustana Lutheran Church, V st. and New Hampshire ave. nw., at 11 a. m.

Jews Observe 3 Holy Days This Month

Three major Holy Days of the Jewish year will be observed this month.

At sundown on September 11, Jews throughout the world will begin their celebration of Rosh Hashonoh, the beginning of the New Year 5711.

At sundown on September 20, the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur, will begin.

The third of the high holidays, most joyous and longest in the year, will begin at sundown on September 25. It is known as Sukkos, the Feast of the Tabernacles.

With Rosh Hashonoh, a period of 10 days of prayer and penitence will commence which comes to a climax on Yom Kippur, a day of fasting and worship, which is the most solemn of the religious year.

Moral Responsibility Stressed

Traditional part of the Rosh Hasonoh service is the blowing of the shofar, or ram's horn, by the cantor of the congregation. Similar horns were used in ancient Palestine to summon citizens to assemble or to intimidate the enemy in times of war.

According to the Jewish system of computation, the appearance of man conscious of his moral and spiritual nature took place 3760 years before the Christian era.

Both Rosh Hashonoh and Yom Kippur are solemn days in which the moral responsibility of the individual is stressed. Thus, they are sometimes called "The Days of Awe," and the month of Tishri, in which they fall is sometimes called "The Month of Spiritual Strength."

Yom Kippur services open with the chanting of the melancholy and moving Kol Nidre by the cantor. On this day of total abstinence from food and drink, devout Jews ask God for forgiveness from their sins.

Sukkos Is Joyful Holiday

In contrast to these two holidays, Sukkos is a joyous festival. During it, Jews give thanks for the good things of the past year. Its name comes from the "sukkoh" or booth which is constructed of twigs and branches in the temples and homes as part of the celebration.

Rosh Hashonoh will be observed for two days by Orthodox and Conservative Jews, and for one day by Reform congregations. Yom Kippur will be observed for one day by all groups.

Orthodox and Conservative Jews will observe Sukkos for nine days, with the first two and the last two as full holidays, and the days between as semiholidays. Reform Jews will observe the feast for eight days, with the first and eighth as full holidays.

Dr. Homrighausen Of Princeton To Preach Sunday

Dr. E. G. Homrighausen, professor of Christian education at Princeton Theological Seminary, will preach on "A Working Faith," Sunday at 9 and 11 a. m. in the National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw.

Dr. Homrighausen

A widely known author and contributor to religious publications, Dr. Homrighausen served pastorates in Indiana and Illinois before joining the Princeton faculty. He has also taught at the University of Geneva, the University of Dubuque, Occidental College and Butler University.

Since 1933, he has attended as a delegate many world religious conferences. This year he was on the program committee of the World Convention of Christian Education meeting in Toronto.

Rabbi Golinkin to Hold Services in Arlington

Rabbi Noah Golinkin, new spiritual leader of the Arlington Jewish Center, will conduct High Holy Day services this year with the assistance of Cantor Jacob Zaltzman.

Because of the limited seating capacity at the Center, 2920 Lee blvd., Arlington, reservations are now being offered to members, with remaining seats open to nonmembers.

Presbyterian Membership Gain Shown

Philadelphia, Sept. 1 (Spl.).—Membership figures in the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A. showed a net gain of 61,831 last year, according to figures released by the Office of General Assembly today.

The number of new communicants added to the church rolls in 1949 was 118,950, bringing the total membership to 2,391,967, largest in the church's history. Membership statistics are based on the number of communicants in full standing, the office said.

There was a rise in Sunday church school enrollment from 1,351,138 in 1948 to 1,465,844 last year. There were 77,101 infant baptisms in the church, an increase of 5296 over the previous year.

Swami Will Discuss 'The Blessing of Life'

Swami Premananda will preach on "The Blessing of Life," at 11 a. m. Sunday when the Self-Realization Fellowship, nonsectarian church at 4748 Western ave. nw., resumes its regular weekly services.

The church was closed during July and August. The public class in philosophy and yoga will be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday, and each Wednesday thereafter, it was announced.

Catholics Plan Version Of 'In Our Image'

A Roman Catholic edition of "In Our Image," the collection of Old Testament stories selected by Houston Harte, Texas newspaper publisher, and illustrated by Guy Rowe, Time magazine cover artist, will be published this fall, it was announced yesterday by Oxford University Press.

The original "In Our Image," based on the King James version of the Holy Bible, was published last year.

500 Exchange Club Members Make Training School Tour

Members of the National Exchange Club took time off from business sessions of their thirty-second annual convention the other day to learn more about one of their pet projects through a visit to the National Training School for Boys.

The club's project, which is the sponsorship of boys after they have been paroled from Federal institutions, was started in September, 1948.

The members, about 500, were impresed with the efficiency of the school, the boys' well-trained actions and the fact the school has no bars at its windows, a spokesman said yesterday.

Briefly, the sponsorship program works this way: Richard A. Chappell, who is Chief Probation Officer for the United States Courts, and also an Exchange Club member, notifies club administrators when a boy is to be paroled.

The administrators then carefully select a sponsor who usually goes to the institution to get acquainted with the boy.

When the boy is paroled, the sponsor acts as a foster-father. He may take him into his home, help him get a job and is pledged to stick with him, even if he gets into trouble again.

The program is handled with much secrecy. No one, except the administrator, knows the identity of sponsor or boy.

The National Exchange Club, which is convening at the Hotel Statler through Monday, will hear business reports this afternoon. Louis Budenz, assistant professor of economics at Fordham University, will speak at the dinner meeting tonight.

Loyalty Affidavits Signed by 4 Balky Md. Candidates

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 1 (AP).—Four Progressive Party candidates signed under protest today affidavits of loyalty but two others still refused so they can test the requirement in court.

Five Progressive Party candidates previously had tried to file for office without the affidavits of their loyalty to State and Nation. The Secretary of State, upon advice of Attorney General Hall Hammond, rejected those for Governor and United States Senate, and the Baltimore City supervisor of elections refused to accept three Congressional candidates.

Signing the affidavits were Sam Fox, United States Senate candidate; Marshal Jones, Congressional candidate, and Milton Seif and Otto Yerrell, candidates for the State House of Delegates.

Refraining were Louis Shub, party candidate for Governor, and Thelma Gerende, nominated last night for Congress. All six members of the party are from Baltimore.

Silver Spring Woman Robbed

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 1 (AP).—Thieves escaped with over $5000 worth of loot yesterday after ransacking two automobiles parked outside the Big Savage Inn, 15 miles west of here, on U. S. 40, State police reported.

The bulk of the loot consisted of Government bonds taken from the car of Mrs. Irene G. Lillie of Silver Spring, Md. She was en route to California to be with her husband, who is in the Army. Two insurance policies also were stolen from Mrs. Lillie's car, and State police believe the thieves may use the policies as identification in attempting to cash the bonds.

Luggage and clothing worth an estimated $350 was stolen from the automobile of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnhard of Pittsburgh. They were on a vacation trip to Atlantic City, N. J.

Shantz Wins, 4-2

A's Finally End Bosox' Mastery

Philadelphia, Sept. 1 (AP).—Boston's string of 12 straight victories over the Philadelphia A's this year ended tonight when 5-foot 7-inch Bobby Shantz tamed the pennant-aspiring Red Sox, 4-2, with six hits. It was Philadelphia's first win over the Bostonians since April 23 when Shantz also was returned a winner.

Shantz and Chuck Stobbs, first of three Red Sox hurlers, pitched hitless ball through the first four innings with each club having only one base runner.

Walt Dropo broke Shantz's spell as he belted his thirtieth home run of the season to open the fifth. The Sox scored once more on hits by Al Zarilla and Birdie Tebbetts and an outfield fly.

Kermit Wahl opened the A's fifth with a single and made the rounds on a walk to Pete Suder and Barney McClosky's double.

Singles by Elmer Valo and Billy Hitchcock, Wahl's sacrifice, an intentional pass, Shantz's fly and a wild throw by Bill Goodman gave the Athletics two mo in the sixth.

Philadelphia's fourth run crossed the plate in the seventh on a walk to McCosky, Ferris Fain's safe bunt, a sacrifice, an intentional base on balls and a long fly.

Sedgman, Brown Upset In Nationals

By Gayle Talbot

Forest Hills, Sept. 1 (AP).—A pair of strong-minded young Californians who were left off the American Davis Cup team and didn't like it, gained a measure of revenge today by knocking two of the greatest gate attractions out of the National Tennis Championships.

Little Earl Cochell of Los Angeles, who was the maddest of the cup orphans, swarmed over Frank Sedgman like a nest of hornets and stung the Australian champion into quick defeat in the play-off of a match halted by darkness yesterday. The final scores were, 7—5, 5—7, 1—6, 6—2, 6—2.

Art Larsen of San Francisco took his feelings out on Tom Brown, jr., a fellow townsman, who scored Uncle Sam's only victory in last week's cup disaster. Larsen was even more firm about it than Cochell, blasting Tom by scores of 6—3, 2—6, 6—1, 6—4.

With Sedgman's defeat, not a foreigner was left among the six survivors in the men's field.

Larsen's semifinal opponent in the lower bracket will be Dick Savitt, the big Cornell student out of Orange, N. J., who scored today over Sidney Schwartz of Long Beach, N. Y., 8—6, 6—2, 2—6, 6—3.

The victorious Cochell will get a shot at another Davis Cup stalwart when he faces Gardnar Mulloy of Miami in one of tomorrow's two remaining quarterfinals.

Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Billy Talbert of New York City clash for the other semifinal berth.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont of Wilmington, Del., and Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., also advanced to the semifinals of the women's division. The top-seeded Mrs. DuPont whipped Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of Lajolla, Calif., 6—3, 6—4, while Miss Hart, rated No. 2, beat young Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, 6—4, 6—4. Miss Fry was sixth seeded.

Other top scores in the Deward match yesterday were Peter Romcivitz, of West Newton, Pa., 400 on the 31x; and Carl Petrie, of Buffalo, N. Y., 400 on the 28x.

Three Major Networks Carry World Series

New York, Sept. 1 (AP).—Simultaneous television coverage of the 1950 World Series over the networks of the American broadcasting Co., Columbia Broadcasting System and National Broadcasting Co. has been arranged, the Gillette Safety Razor Co. said tonight.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler said last month that the Gillette company and the Mutual Broadcasting Co. had been granted exclusive radio and television rights for the series, with the TV contract bringing baseball $800,000 and the radio broadcasting an additional $175,000.

At a meeting today of the network companies and others involved, agreement was reached on the subject. Paul Jonas, director of sports for Mutual, explained.

"The orginal television contract among Mutual, Gillette and baseball stipulated that Mutual's shareholder stations, namely WOR-TV in New York; WNAC-TV in Boston and WGN-TV in Chicago, carry the series regardless of who else has it. Those are our three key TV stations connected with the coaxial cables."

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 1 (AP).—Patricha Ann Lesser, a trim tanned youngster from Seattle, Wash., won the second annual USGA junior girls golf championship today by trimming Mary Kathryn (Mickey) Wright of La Jolla, Calif., 4 and 2.

Mickey made a game bid for it, winning the fifthteenth to cut Pat's lead to 3-up, and chipping bravely for the cup on the sixteenth, which she lost to a conceded par 5.

Browns Save AAC Face, Top Bears, 27-23

Cleveland, Sept. 1 (AP).—Coach Paul Brown's dashing Cleveland Browns proved tonight what All-America pro football fans have been shouting for years: that they can beat the Chicago Bears. They did, 27 to 23.

But they had the 51,076 Browns' rooters praying for the final gun in the exhibition contest that marked the first time the teams had met.

The difference was the uncanny toe of big Lou Groza, a fixture as a kicker in the Cleveland lineup during the years they coasted along as champs of the old All-America Conference.

Groza booted two field goals, one in the second quarter and again in the fourth. Chicago matched the Browns, touchdown for touchdown, but muffed one extra point and had only one field goal.

Scoring summary:

Cleveland	7	10	0	10—27
Chicago Bears	7	3	0	13—23

Chicago scoring: Touchdowns, Keane, Kavanaugh 2; points after touchdowns, Lujack 2; field goal, Blanda. Cleveland scoring: Touchdowns, Bumgardner, Jones, Carpenter; points after touchdowns, Groza 3; field goals, Groza, 2.

Skunk Goes to College, Holds Up Work on Maryland's Stadium

A skunk held up the forced draft work on the new football stadium at the University of Maryland for half an hour yesterday.

Bricklayers refused to go to work on the dressing room section of the new bowl until the invader left. The skunk refused all enticements offered at long range.

A braver soul finally advanced with a shovel and the skunk decamped into the nearby woods.

Construction crews are racing against time on the stadium. The finishing touches are a long way off yet but the university promises to have it far enough along so it can be used for the Navy-Maryland game on September 30.

A New Take-Charge Guy

Gilmer Steps In as Baugh's Equal Partner at Quarterback

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

KANSAS CITY, MO., Sept. 1.—Sammy Baugh's prize pupil, Harry Gilmer, hasn't succeeded in running old man Baugh out of his Redskins' quarterback job altogether, but he is making progress in that direction.

This is the first time in his 14 years with the Redskins that Baugh doesn't have a monopoly on the job. It's an equal partnership now with Gilmer in the driver's seat 50 percent of the time and Baugh in control the other 50 percent. Baugh plays the first and last quarters, Gilmer the second and third.

That's the way it's been for three of the four Redskins' exhibition games so far and that's the way Coach Herman Ball thinks it'll be from now on. That is, unless Gilmer takes over completely.

Unlike last year, when even he himself admits he was pretty much of a flop, Gilmer is a poised, confident, take-charge operator this year. He's passed for five touchdowns in the last two games and his play-calling left little to be desired.

"THAT'S BECAUSE for the first time since I've been with the Redskins I know what I'm trying to do," said Alabam's gift to professional football."

Last year was Harry's toughest in football, even tougher than his freshman year in pro ball, 1948, when he sat out the season with a blood clot.

Everything went wrong. The Redskins weren't winning, Gilmer didn't know how to quarterback a T-formation team—he'd

Slo-Mo-Shun Wins 1st Heat In Harmsworth

By Happy Walker

Detroit, Sept. 1.—The fastest speedboat in the world, Slo-Mo-Shun, and a substitute driver, Lou Fageol of Kent, Ohio, paired up to lead the United States to a first heat victory in the second post-war Harmsworth International Trophy race here today.

At the starting gun, Fageol gunned the thundering Slo-Mo-Shun into the lead over the four-boat field and was never headed, throughout the 8 lap, 40 mile grind. Circling the oval course in the first lap Fageol set the fastest pace for the day, at 94.04 m.p.h. His average speed for the 40-mile heat was 91.127 m.p.h.

Last Minute Substitution

Selection of Fageol as the substitute driver by owner Stanley Sayres was made at the last minute. He replaced Ted Jones, Boeing aircraft supervisor, who designed the boat. In a bit of horseplay early in the week, with mechanic Joe Schobert, Jones came out the loser with a sprained arm. Early runs today proved too much for the daring pilot who requested to be relieved of the driving chore.

Second boat of the American team, Horace Dodge's My Sweetie, with Bill Cantrell at the controls, got away to a rather poor start, and could not get close to Slo-Mo-Shun, which at times was churning the Detroit River at better than 130 miles per hour.

Such Crust II Second

The Jack Schafer entry, Such Crust II, the remaining member of the United States team, managed to hold third place throughout the 40-mile grueling speed test.

The Canadian challenger, Harold Wilson, at the helm of the Rolls-Royce powered Miss Canada was the last to cross the starting line and at no time during the race was it apparent that Wilson would improve his position. Going into the last lap Miss Canada did a complete spin around at the far turn, the result of a dislocated steering wheel.

Tomorrow the second heat of the Harmsworth will be run.

Infielder Denies Jumping

Nippy Jones Suspended After Leaving Cards

Ump Boyer Quits American Staff for Western Maryland Job

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1 (AP).—Nippy Jones was suspended indefinitely by the St. Louis Cardinals today for failure to show up for the team's trip to Pittsburgh, but he insisted "I didn't jump the team."

The first baseman, after returning to his home in Los Angeles, said he left the club with the knowledge and consent of Owner Fred Saigh. Saigh denied this, saying he had asked Jones to stay with the club until an adequate replacement could be found.

Jones underwent a serious back operation last winter and was put back on the active list only last July 17. He has played in only a few games since then but has been used as a pinch batter.

"I called up Mr. Saigh and told hi mI'm not ready to play baseball," Jones said.

The Cardinal owner said "doctors who examined him say he could play without injury to himself."

Jones said he received Saigh's permission to go on the voluntary retired list.

Saigh said this wasn't so—that he told Jones he didn't want him on the voluntary retired list because it would stop Jones' salary and prevent him from playing the first 30 days of the 1951 season.

The club owner said Jones still insisted he didn't want to make the trip to Pittsburgh and said he intended to write to Commissioner Chandler. "I told him to go ahead, that I couldn't stop him," Saigh said.

Spears, Former Terps' Coach, on Critical List

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 1 (AP).—A heart ailment kept Clarence (Doc) Spears, well known former football coach, on the critical list at University Hospital here today.

A hospital attendant said Spears who is 55, was "resting comfortably and without pain" but his condition was "about the same." He previously had been described as critically ill.

Spears formerly coached at Minnesota, Wisconsin, Maryland and several other schools.

Phils Down Braves, 7-3; 9th Win in 11 on Road

Boston, Sept. 1 (AP).—Andy Seminick banged a two-run, inside-the-park homer as the Philadelphia Phillies trounced the Boston Braves, 7-3, tonight for the National League leaders' ninth win in their last 11 road starts. Rokie righthander Bubba Church kept eight Boston hits scattered, including Hartsfield's sixth homer of the season.

Seminick's unusual four-bagger, his twenty-first of the campaign, was against Max Surkont after Willie Jones reached on an error in the sixth inning. The ball crashed against the centerfield fence, about 15 feet up, and bounced off at a sharp angle.

Before Sam Jethroe could regain it, Jones and Seminick crossed the plate to boost the Phils into a 4-1 lead. Then the lighting system failed for about four minutes because of powerhouse trouble.

Brooklyn, Sept. 1 (AP).—Monte Irvin drove in three runs tonight on a homer and fly ball to lead the New York Giants to 4-1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The victory enabled the Giants to take fourth place from the St. Louis Cardinals and it dumped the Dodgers seven games behind the league-leading Philadelphia Phils.

Reynolds Pitches 4-Hitter

Yanks Lead by 2½, KO Sima on 5 Runs

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New York, Sept. 1.—Large Johnny Mize banged a large-sized home run into the right field stands in the eighth inning tonight to rearrange the scoreboard scenery for the Yankees and 33,134 fans. It was the blow that beat the Nats, 6 to 2.

To that disastrous point, Rookie Al Sima was boasting a 2-1 lead over the league leaders, thanks to Mickey Vernon's first-inning homer with Irv Noren on base. And then in that eighth, the Yanks caved him in with five runs.

Mize's was the big blow, as the Yanks made it five wins in a row this humid night. The big Yankee first baseman stepped into the situation after Yogi Berra singled and Hank Bauer drew a walk with one out. He stepped into a Sima curve-ball and knocked it for a three-run homer.

Just to make it emphatic, Bill Johnson walloped Sima's next pitch for a home run into the left field seats. Johnson was running his private score to two for the night. It was his homer in the fourth that accounted for the only Yank run in the first seven innings.

Allie Reynolds was the winning pitcher, and no wonder. What he did was to hold the Nats to four hits for the night. When Vernon wasn't hitting home runs, the Nats were getting no runs at all.

It all added up to a 2½ game lead for the Yankees over the second place Tigers. And another thing—they've won 14 of their last 16 games.

Sima was doing a very nice job of it in his duel with Reynolds until he encountered Mize's homer. Despite the fact that the Yankees got at least one hit in every inning, he didn't yield any runs except Johnson's homer in the first seven.

Vernon's swat that put the Nats in a 2-0 lead was a very emphatic sock after Irv Noren singled with two out in the first. It streaked all the way up into the facing of the third deck of right field. But the Nats didn't get another man to second base until the seventh inning.

They wound up mad at Umpire Jim Honochick, too. With one out and Yost on base in their eighth, they saw Honochick call a third strike on a pitch that was in the neighborhood of Noren's collar. Noren got hot under it at that call, and had to be restrained from laying hands on Honochick.

The Nats fluffed out of the inning completely a moment later. Yost tried to take two bases on a passed ball, and was nipped at third on Berra's peg to Johnson. That was the closest they came to scoring in the last innings.

IN SHORT . . . The Yankees are dipping into the bottom of the barrel for a starting pitcher tomorrow. Joe Ostrowski, hitherto a relief pitcher, is their choice . . . Joe Haynes, shutout winner over the Browns in his last start, will go for the Nats . . . Yogi Berra is replacing Joe DiMaggio as the prime hero of Yankee Stadium fans, if their comparative applause can be believed . . . Little Phil Rizzuto was showered with gifts by admirers before the game tonight in home-plate ceremonies. Most fitting of all, perhaps, was the little Austin car he received . . . Eddie Yost posted his 111th walk tonight, thus breaking by nine the previous record of a Washington player set by Buddy Myer in 1934 . . . Bucky Harris declares he never saw a better lead-off man than Yost.

Eastern Gets 2

Wilson Lands Six Gridders From Central

By Bill Gilbert
Post Reporter

Wilson, Western and Eastern have fallen heir to most of the Central High athletes who were given their choice of schools when Central was turned over to Cardozo.

Wilson has six former Central football players working out with the squad, Western has two regular linemen and Eastern has landed Central's crack quarterback and its first team baseball catcher.

Roosevelt, which figured to get most of the boys because of its proximity to Central, has only one, substitute end Buddy Loewe. Coach Gil Conn at Coolidge, who called his boys out yesterday, said he did not see any Central boys at the workout. Ed Solomon of McKinley Tech has End Buddy Hogel.

Chaconas Due At Wilson

Jerry Murphy, Max Carpenter, John Richter, Al Wagner and Wayne August have reported to Coach Joe Carlo at Wilson. Pete Chaconas, Viking football and baseball star, has sent his transcript to the Wilson office and is expected to join the Green Tiger squad in a day or two.

Fred Mulvey at Western won't call his players out until Tuesday but already he has received word that Tackle Bill McHenry and Center Ted Nuckolls will play for him.

Jimmy Sullivan, left-handed passing quarterback at Central, will play for Eastern. Accompanying Sullivan to Eastern will be Pat McDougall, standout back in football and catcher in baseball.

Pantos Undecided

McDougall, however, will not play football. He has a chance to sign with the Brooklyn Dodgers next year and does not want to run the risk of being injured while playing football.

The progressive athletic policy of Eastern Principal John Paul Collins undoubtedly was a major factor in their decision, as was the transfer to John Janowski to Eastern. The popular Jankowski was athletic director at Central last year.

One of Central's star basketball players, Duke Pantos, is not yet sure which school he will attend. Pantos, brother of Jimmy, one of the greatest Viking athletes, is expected to choose either Roosevelt or Coolidge, since they are nearest his home.

Bob Wolfe defeated Dick Foster, 5 and 4, to win the District Junior Open Golf Tournament yesterday at Georgetown Prep.

Wolfe closed out the match on the fourteenth hole with a birdie while Foster had a par five. Wolfe missed an eagle by 10 inches on the last hole.

Bill Ball won the second flight crown by eliminating Joe O'Brien, 1 up. Ball won from Willie Beach, 1 up, and O'Brien ousted Billy McFerrin won the 13-and-under title, 5 and 3, over Robin Ehlerts.

The first nine holes were fairly even, Wolfe ending one over par with a 36. Foster posted a 37. Wolfe shot par golf on the first five holes but went one over on the sixth. He got back that stroke on the next hole, however, parred the eighth and bogeyed the ninth.

Foster, 1949 Washington Post schoolboy champion, was one over on the third and ninth with pars on the rest.

Foster three-putted the eleventh for a bogey five, while Wolfe was even. Wolfe closed out the match three holes later.

In the morning semifinal round, Foster defeated Ronald Watson, 5 and 4, and Wolfe downed Dennis Bolster, 3 and 2. Foster was four under par when he closed out his match on the fourteenth.

Mrs. Schnitzer Wins

Mrs. J. G. Schitzer's 98—23—75 won the ladies' day white elephant golf tournament yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club. Mrs. J. E. DeLashmutt was second with 104—23—81 and Mrs. R. E. Aldred was third with 106—22—84.

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks: At Timonium.

The best-looking riding prospect hereabouts is not Anthony Russo, the Bel Air sensation, in my book. He is Doyle Gardner, the Arizona youngster under the wing of Trainer Stumpy Crawford. Gardner is somewhat of a stranger to most of the conditioners around here, but once he gets going you can look for him to go places. His ride on Cedar Brand was excellent. Young Gardner was raised with horses in the West and rode quarter steeds before he was 10 years old. I expect him to make the grade on the big time, and that could come this fall. This track offers a good Saturday program. The improved betting facilities here make the plant more suitable to large crowds than in the past. See you on the rail. BILL.

Gilmer Steps In for Baugh

never played the offense before joining the Redskins—

"I was criticized a lot for not staying in the pass pocket," he continued, "and it was true. But it wasn't altogether my fault. I had to do something when those big linemen crashed through our line and came for me. You just can't stand back there and eat that football.

"This year, I'm getting some blocking for a change. I don't have to run for my life every time I go back to pass. And this year, too, Coach Ball is letting me run with the ball. And I love it. I wish he'd let me run more often. It would help me with my passing. When I've got the other team guessing what I'm gonna do with the ball, I got them licked."

"I made the mistake also last year of not running back to pass quick enough. I wasn't used to it because at Alabama, where we played the single wing formation, I was five or six yards back of the line of scrimmage when the ball was snapped to me.

When he first joined the Redskins three seasons ago and was faced with the job of playing behind Baugh, Gilmer said he felt pretty much like the substitute first baseman the New York Yankees took to camp when the late Lou Gehrig was in his prime.

"But I've got a new outlook on that situation too now," he smiled. "I don't know how long more Sam's gonna play, but when he steps down, and one of these days he will and I'll be in complete charge, I'll be ready to take over. I think I am now."

"Tatum Beats Rowland to Draw With Orange Juice at Sunrise on the First Day of Football

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

YOU HAVE TO get up early in the morning to beat out Bo Rowland, the sharp little George Washington football coach. And Jim Tatum did just that yesterday as practice started for both schools.

Tatum hauled his 69 Maryland footballers out of the sack at 6 a. m. yesterday for a glass of orange juice, and onto the field for their first session by 6:45.

Rowland and his 38 players didn't start for their Frog Island field until 9 a. m.

"I want my boys to work while it's fairly cool," explained Tatum between yawns. But at 3:15 p. m., when the sun was high and the humidity even higher, Tatum had his charges running again.

"They've got to get used to the hot weather too," he said. "Remember, we play at Georgia September 23, and we want to be acclimated for the warm weather down there."

THERE is no shortage of punters in the G. W. camp with John Shullenbarger, Andy Davis and Bino Barriera on hand. Jack Baumgartner, who booted 'em as far as 60 yards while at McKinley Tech High a few years ago, is fourth string in that department.

However, Jack will see a lot of action understudying Davis at left halfback. Last spring when he developed a sore arm, it was feared that Baumgartner, star of the undefeated freshman team, was through with the game.

After spring practice, Jack had an infected tooth pulled, and he started to regain his strength. He played some sandlot baseball as a catcher. When he whipped three base stealers out in one game, he knew his arm was back.

AT RANDOM—Sterling Wingo, star halfback at Virginia Tech for the past three years, has decided to give up the sport this fall to concentrate on his studies and track. Wingo was Southern Conference sprint champion in 1948 . . . Art Cooper, a Washington, D. C., boy who never played football in his home town, has a good chance to win the left halfback post at Colgate. A 165-pounder, Cooper prepped at Hebron Academy in Maine, and starred on Colgate's freshman football and track teams . . . Of the 11 Washington athletes on Clemson's freshman football team two years ago, only one is on the varsity this year. He is Glenn Smith, a Tech product, named the outstanding sophomore end in the Southern Conference last year . . . Jim McCauley, one of the former Clemson boys, will play end on Wilson Teachers College's first team in 15 years.

4 Police Officials Formally Sworn in Four high-ranking police officials who began new assignments yesterday were sworn in at special ceremonies in the detective bureau squad room.

They are:

Inspector Robert S. Bryant, permanent superintendent of the uniformed forces;

Inspector Robert V. Murray, new chief of detectives; Capt. Edgar E. Scott, who succeeded Murray as assistant chief of detectives; Capt. Otto P. Fuss, who was promoted to captain to head the robbery squad, a post vacated by Scott.

Flaherty

The promotions and new assignments resulted from the retirement of Inspector Arthur E. Miller, an assistant superintendent, whose post was taken by Bryant.

Also sworn in yesterday were Detective Sergt. John J. Fitzpatrick, Precinct Detective William Rasmussen and Probationary Detective Seymour Rayboy, all of whom were promoted.

Earlier, 80 rookies were sworn in, the largest mas swearing-in ceremony in police department history.

In addressing the four officials, Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett praised them individually and paid tribute to Miller. He also disclosed Capt. Jeremiah Flaherty, head of the homicide squad, declined the post of Assistant Chief of Detectives because he contemplates retirement "within a year or two" for reasons of poor health. Barrett said Flaherty told him that when he bows out, he wants to retire as head of the homicide squad, a post he has held nine years.

Barrett and Miller both referred to an editorial on Miller's retirement which appeared last Sunday in The Washington Post. It questioned "whether forced retirement for physical disability is being used by the police hierarchy for internal political purposes."

Both men denied that Miller, who headed the traffic division for a decade, had been "forced" to retire.

Praising Miller's record, Barrett said, "You have done a good job for the department and for the citizens of the District of Columbia."

Barrett wished Miller a quick recovery from his illness and added that "if you decide to come back to be of further service to the citizens of the Dstrict of Columbia, I hope that you will ask me to recommend you."

Miller replied, "It is true that I am not crippled yet, but doctors tell me that if I don't do something about it, I will be."

Miller said he is geing to spend the winter at Plaquemine, La.

Gambling Probe

Hunt's Life Threatened By Letter

Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), revealed last night that he had received an unsigned letter threatening his life if he pressed his fight against gambling syndicates.

Hunt said the letter was postmarked at Boston, and written apparently by a sane person.

The senator said he destroyed the letter after its receipt several days ago.

Referring to it from memory, Hunt said the writer suggested that anyone who "tried too vigorously to stop gambling" probably would meet a violent death.

Hunt said the letter probably stemmed from his work as a member of the Senate crime investigating subcommittee and his sponsorship of a bill to tax illegal gambling revenues 99 percent.

8 Indicted in Florida

Miami, Fla., Sept. 1 (U.P.).—Eight "big names" were indicted for gambling today as the Dade County grand jury announced it was just "beginning" to clean out the flourishing gambling pointed out by a Senate subcommittee.

The individuals were not identified pending serving of warrants by sheriff's deputies. The list of names was handed to Circuit Judge Marshal C. Wiseheart as the first crackdown after a two-month investigation of "gambling and its influence on public officials."

"The people indicted are not small fry," said Robert H. Givens, jr., special counsel for the grand jury. "There is no excuse for the prosecution of these people not being successful. We have a very strong case."

"Hundreds of persons are involved in this investigation warranting indictments. The jury first is taking care of the cases against the major suspects."

The indictments carry 14 charges of violating Florida law by operating gambling establishments against each defendant. They list eight gambling places at Miami Beach.

Each count carries a maximum penalty on conviction of three years in jail or a $5000 fine or both. Judge Wiseheart said a $5000 bond would be set for each person indicted.

The grand jury began its investigation last June as a result of a public hearing by the Senate subcommittee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) investigating Nation-wide crime.

Kefauver's group has moved on to other cities, but meanwhile 30 men have been indicted on gambling charges by two other grand juries working in various parts of the State.

Three sheriffs and two constables have been suspended by Gov. Fuller Warren and the S. & G. Syndicate, alleged operators of Miami Beach's 28 million-dollar-a-year illegal bookmaking industry, has been forced to close.

Pair Captures Man Sought In Assaults

An apartment manager, a maintenance supervisor and a tenant collaborated yesterday in the capture of a man wanted by Fairfax County police for a series of "indecent assaults" on women in the Parkwood apartment development.

Joseph Crown, 34, 3204 Chillum rd., Mount Rainier, was booked at Fairfax police headquarters on an assault charge sworn out by an attractive 30-year-old housewife, who paved the way for his arrest yesterday when she recognized him as the man who had made improper advances to her about five months ago.

According to Detective Sergt. Joseph Howard, the complainant spotted Crown walking along a street in the development shortly before noon. She summoned Harry E. Cragin, manager of the apartments, and Leonard Gibson, maintenance supervisor, and pointed Crown out as her attacker.

According to the two men, Crown attempted to flee, but was quickly subdued in a brief tussle, Howard said. Cragin and Gibson held him until the arrival of county police.

Crown, a washing machine repairman, was linked to "several" other attacks in the area, Howard said. Crown was released last night under $5000 bond for hearing in Fairfax Police Court at an unspecified date.

Plan for Appealing Ratings Proposed For U. S. Employes

Senator Long (D., La.) yesterday proposed a compromise plan under which employes could appeal "satisfactory" efficiency ratings.

He suggested that employes rated "satisfactory" be given the right of appeal to either their agency boards or an impartial board set up by the Civil Service Commission, but not both appeal boards. Employes rated "unsatisfactory" could appeal to both boards.

Senate-House conferences on the bill to overhaul the efficiency rating system are agreed that employes should be given one of three ratings: outstanding, satisfactory or unsatisfactory.

The House bill would allow full appeal rights to employes rated satisfactory or unsatisfactory. The Senate bill would limit appeals to those who were rated unsatisfactory. House conferees make the excellent point that veterans will continue to have full appeal rights under the Veterans' Preference Act; that only nonveterans would stand to be hurt if appeals are limited.

Also, that Civil Service plans to change its retention point system to give the "outstanding" employe job preference, and members of the House group feel that every employe should be given every opportunity to get an outstanding rating. The Administration opposes appeal rights for satisfactory employes.

FBI: The President yesterday asked Congress for six million dollars to expand the Federal Bureau of Investigation. This is one request for additional funds that won't be opposed on Capitol Hill. In fact, the Congress may give the FBI more money than the President requested.

The six million dollars would allow the FBI to hire 1218 more clerical workers and 835 new G-men. It would boost the agency staff to more than 12,000.

TOP JOBS: The Defense Production Act, as approved yesterday by Congress, gives the President the authority to allocate additional jobs in the three top classified grades, GS-16, 17, and 18. The jobs pay from $11,200 to $14,000.

The act doesn't carry a limit on the number of jobs that can be assigned to the top grades as was seriously considered at one time. However, it does specify that the jobs are to be "temporary." This doesn't mean the jobs will be wiped out when the act expires.

The job authority is given the President as he "deems it necessary and appropriate in order to carry out the provisions of this act." Those words must be interpreted by the legal experts, that's for sure.

Questions already have arisen on the wording. It's a good bet that the President will restrict the new jobs to persons whose work is directly connected with the defense program; that regular old-

Choice of 3 Forms Of Government Asked By Fairfax Board

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Fairfax County's Board of Supervisors will ask for a ballot offering voters three alternatives in an impending referendum on proposed changes in the county's form of government.

Members of the board disclosed yesterday they had agreed to ask the Circuit Court for a ballot which would permit voters to choose between two separate systems if they vote to change from the existing administration.

The plan was immediately assailed by the Committee for Good Government in Fairfax County as a "confusion tactic" and an effort to split the vote of the county's reorganization movement.

The plan was decided on by the supervisors at a called meeting of the board Thursday morning.

Although petitions now before Circuit Judge Paul E. Brown ask for a referendum on a direct change over to the county manager plan. Only, the supervisors will recommend that voters also be given a chance to vote for the county executive plan as well as the existing executive secretary form.

If their recommendations are followed, voters would be asked to decide: (1) if they favor a change in government, and (2) if so, which of the two alternate forms they prefer.

Recommended By Commission

The action was taken on recommendation of a special 21-member commission, appointed last May to study all forms of government available to the county under existing law. In a letter to the board, the commission suggested use of a ballot provided under the State's optional forms law, permitting voters to choose from the three governmental systems.

In the letter, commission officials said the joint ballot had been approved by a 17-1 vote of members attending a special meeting August 25. The three commission members unable to attend the meeting later concurred in the majority opinion, they said.

In a series of public meetings conducted by the commission, there has been virtually no mention of the county executive form of government. It is similar in many respects to the county manager form, except for the fact that it provides for election of supervisors by districts rather than at large.

Also, the county manager would have authority to appoint department heads, while the county executive would have to get approval of the supervisors in filling the same posts.

Hearing Scheduled Tuesday

A hearing has been scheduled by Judge Brown for Tuesday at 10 a. m. on the petition asking the referendum on a change of government. If the petition is found to be in order, Judge Brown said, he will order the election to be held along with the general election November 7.

The Committee for Good Government in Fairfax County, in an emergency session last night, declared that "this effort of the supervisors and their hand-picked 'study' commission to split the vote of the reorganization movement in the county, should surprise no one.

"This confusion tactic reflects the wishful thought that, since the people are determined to improve their government, perhaps they might be satisfied to go half way toward good government," their statement said in part.

Boys Find, Return $250 In Wallet

Two of Robert Reaves' best customers for ice cream and popsicles can bank on preferential treatment for the rest of the summer.

They returned Reaves' wallet—with $250 in it—Thursday night, before he even knew he had lost it. As for them, they didn't identify the name in the wallet with the young man who sells ice cream from a truck.

The customers are Perry Kent, "almost 16," of 3200 Coquelin terr., Chevy Chase, and Billy Bonbrest, "almost 15," of 3300 West Coquelin terr.

Walking to a model plane meet Thursday night, they spotted the wallet near the East-West hwy., and decided—having spotted its contents—to return it. The identification only gave the name and the address, 7312 Hampden la., Bethesda.

So on foot and hitching rides—they got lost at one point—they made their way to the Bethesda address.

There they learned that "Dick, the guy who sells ice cream," was identical with Richard Reaves. They also learned that the 18-year-old Reaves took the summer job purveying ice cream to make expense money for his freshman year at Grove City College, Pa. The $250 represented his efforts for the season.

The boys didn't make out too badly, either. Reaves provided them with transportation home, a snack to eat and a $5 bill each.

Convict Wins Another Trial On Own Plea

A farm hand who has served two years in prison for attempting a pistol-point holdup was granted a new trial yesterday because he didn't know when he pleaded guilty that the Constitution guaranteed him the right to have a lawyer.

He is Hollie Houston, 31, who came to Washington from DeKalb, Miss., in 1944 after serving 18 months for killing a man during a knife fight.

Houston was arrested here after he tried to rob Harry Asaka, in a store at 1634 11th st. nw. on February 9, 1948.

At his arraignment, he said he wanted a lawyer but was going to plead guilty to the charges against him.

Judge Edward M. Curran then examined the indictment and appointed George E. C. Hayes, a respected lawyer of 30 years experience, to see whether one of the charges should not be dismissed.

Hayes talked to Houston for five minutes and reported back that the dismissal of one charge would be proper. The lawyer, believing his duty was over, then made no further investigation.

Curran, after a probation office report, gave Houston from four to 12 years in prison.

Early this year, while at Lorton, Houston prepared a petition contending that his constitutional rights to counsel were denied him. The United States Court of Appeals sent the case back to Curran to determine whether "effective" legal aid had been given the defendant.

Under questioning by his new court-appointed lawyer, W. F. Justis, Houston admitted that he knew what he was charged with but could not explain legal details of the indictment.

He also contended that the appointment of Hayes for the five-minute conference on the technicality of the indictment was not "effective" legal counsel as required by the Constitution.

Judge Curran set the conviction aside and put the case down for trial in October.

Loudon Plea for Rule Vote to be Heard Sept. 22

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 1 (AP).—Arguments will be heard in Circuit Court September 22 on a petition calling for a referendum on changing the form of Loudoun County government.

Harbor Police Save Mother In River Leap

A mother grieving for three months over the death of her only daughter, yesterday jumped into the Georgetown Channel. A Harbor Police boat crew on patrol nearby, grabbed her sinking body and took her to shore where she was revived.

Mrs. Helen C. Scott, 41, 2316 F st. nw., made her leap about 3 p. m. from the seawall on the District side of the channel about 300 yards downstream from the Washington Gas Light Co. dock, police said.

A few hundred yards away, Privates Charles F. Ripperger and Harold H. Riep were on Patrol Boat No. 4. The woman's clothes kept her afloat a few seconds and Ripperger grabbed her with a boat hook and hauled her aboard.

On shore an Emergency Hospital ambulance attendant treated her for submersion. She was then taken to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation.

Papers in her pocketbook indicated she was employed at the Pentagon. Associates there said she had not been to work for three weeks and they understood she had been despondent since her daughter, Miss Kay Cline, 18, was killed in an auto accident on May 27. The daughter had set last Saturday for her wedding day.

Neighbors at her F st. address said Mrs. Scott "just went to pieces" after her daughter was killed when the car she was driving turned over near Annapolis.

Mrs. Scott, who is separated from her husband, also has two sons, a neighbor said.

District Invites Bids for Removal Of Lorton Sludge

The District Commissioners yesterday invited bids for the removal of "several acres" of wet sludge filter cake deposited at the Lorton, Va., Reformatory grounds.

Bids must be submitted to the District Auditor's Office, Municipal Center Building, 300 Indiana ave. nw. by September 15.

It took a special act of Congress this year to clear the way for the city heads to seek removal of the sludge under a three-year contract. Previously the Commissioners were permitted to let only one-year sludge contracts.

The city had difficulty getting rid of their excess sludge because commercial fertilizer firms which use the refuse contended it was not worthwhile setting up plants for just one year.

Laughs Last

Talking Crow Gives Critic The Bird

All that Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph Lowther could offer yesterday was sympathy when a man came to Municipal Court to complain that his neighbor's talking crow was heckling him.

He got the problem and left it unsolved in this manner:

The complainant said that he lives in the Northwest section but wouldn't give his name. But his mission, he said, was to get justice.

Next odor, he said, lives a talking crow, which recently has enlarged its vocabulary.

"It's got so now that every time either my wife or I go into our front yard, we hear this bird croak my name and go, 'Ha, ha, ha.'"

Lowther might have ha-ha'd himself, but he saw before him one of those thorny situations lawyers dream about.

Then, the complainant continued, "I realize it's nothing serious, but it's getting pretty tiresome."

Out came Lowther's law book, and there he read the District regulations about birds—winged variety.

It said that you can't keep any fowl, parrot or bird, "which by crowing, cackling, talking or singing or in any other manner" shall disturb the comfort and quiet of the "neighborhood."

"I can't stop Mr. Crow from talking back to you personally," said Lowther, "but if you can prove he disturbs the neighborhood, then we have a case. We can get the creature killed and can jail its keeper for a year."

The complainant looked discouraged.

"There's nothing in the law that stops you from talking back," suggested Lowther.

The man walked away, and everybody agreed that Mr. Crow got the last laugh.

Wiretap Probers to Hear 2 Witnesses Thursday

A public hearing in the Senate wire-tapping probe has been set for 10:30 a. m. Thursday to take testimony from two witnesses, Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) announced last night.

The witnesses will be Mrs. Frances Dustin, administrative assistant to Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), and William J. Nolan, who runs an auto finance firm here.

Fatal Docking Of Dog's Tail Brings Jail

A 42-year-old janitor got a ten-day jail term yesterday for cruelty in docking a puppy's tail with a razor blade.

Sentence was imposed by Judge George D. Neilson in Municipal Court on Paul Watson, who lives in the basement of 1705 P st. nw., where he works.

The case was prosecuted after a neighbor complained that he heard the two-month-old dog whimpering yesterday. The animal died a few hours later.

John B. Hudgins, Washington Humane Society investigator, said that the dog was found sick and with its tail stump bleeding.

Watson testified he intended no harm, but merely wanted the dog "bobtailed."

"I did it just like my father used to do in Georgia," he said.

In imposing the jail term plus a $25 fine, Judge Neilson replied: "Well, you're in the District of Columbia now, and we have laws against such things. I have no sympathy for anyone who will cause a dumb animal's death. A dog is supposed to be man's best friend."

100,000 Cars Taking 300,000 Residents Out of City for Holiday

By everything short of pack-mule, the Capital's citizens were fleeing the city for a last-go Labor Day weekend before settling down to the mundane affairs of autumn.

National Airport reported "standing room only"—in the terminal, of course, not in the planes—and "everything going out full."

Union Station said things were "pretty lively."

And the girl at Union Bus Depot reported "all you need is mustard," customers being that sandwiched in waiting to buy tickets.

Mostly Fair Predicted

Still, the main exodus will be by car and this will reach its peak today.

For the motorists and other vacationists in this area the weatherman came up with some quite acceptable predictions:

Today: Scattered showers or thunderstorm; continued warm and humid, high in the middle or upper 80's.

Monday: Probably fair. Low 80's.

Tuesday: Warming up a little; possible showers.

The American Automobile Association estimated that 300,000 District residents traveling in 100,000 cars left last night or will leave this morning.

Quiet Weekend Here

Because of their departure, Metropolitan and Park police expected a quiet weekend here, with no special details.

Also because of it, area police will be working overtime.

At Waterloo Barracks of the Maryland State Police on Route 1 between Washington and Baltimore, all weekend leaves were canceled and men on special assignment put on patrol duty. Patrol strength was expect to be upped 50 percent.

In the nearby Maryland counties of Prince Georges and Montgomery it was also "no leave" for policemen.

The entire Northern Virginia area of the State police canceled all leaves except emergencies and ordered the entire force to highway patrol duty.

The policemen will be giving up holidays in an effort to cut down the big death toll which usually strikes the Nation on Labor Day weekends—435 deaths are predicted for this year.

Coffins Give Warning

To dramatize the dangers in driving a "parade of coffins" rolled through the downtown area yesterday.

Forty-three black boxes borne on trucks represented the District's 43 traffic deaths this year. Each box bore the victim's number, date of his death and his age—they ranged from pre-school to 89 years old. An open coffin tagged for "the next victim" followed the 43 boxes.

Cars smashed beyond recognition, ambulances, rescue vehicles and tow trucks also participated in the parade.

Nearly all stores will be closed Labor Day, food, department and the like.

Hotels here expected some increased business, with out-of-towners coming in to view the Washington sights.

In Montgomery

Policeman Charged in Safe Robbery

A Montgomery County policeman was stripped of his badge and released on $1500 bond yesterday, charged with helping to crack a safe containing $350.

Chief Charles M. Orme of the Montgomery County police said last night that Corpl. James O. Breeden, 33, of 1014 Paul dr., Rockcrest, Md., was one of four men involved in the robbery of $350 from the safe in the back room at the Andrew Devlin Lumber Co., 4833 Bethesda ave., Bethesda, Md., last Saturday at 3 a. m.

Working on a tip from the Metropolitan Police Robbery Squad, members of the Montgomery County Detective Bureau closed the case, Inspector James S. MacAuliffe, in charge of uniformed forces, said.

The other men named are Joseph Albert Fabianich, 20, of 1018 14th st. nw., a salesman; Jack Taylor, 30, of 104 Wotten ave., Chevy Chase, Md., a cab driver, and Albert W. Neville, 32, of 132 Wagner pl. nw., also a cab driver. All have been released on $1500 bond pending a preliminary hearing September 9 in Bethesda Police Court.

Barrett Given Gold Medal by Interior Dept.

In a surprise ceremony at the Interior Department yesterday, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, was presented with a gold medal, an award for distinguished service, by Interior Secretary Oscar L. Chapman.

Barrett was commended for bringing about close cooperation between Metropolitan police and the United States Park Police. The latter force is under the Interior Department.

The police superintendent is the first person outside the Interior Department to receive the award since it was inaugurated in 1947.

Laundry Manager Unit Schedules Institute

American University, in cooperation with the District of Columbia Institutional Laundry Managers Association, will conduct an institute in business management beginning September 25, university officials announced yesterday.

The 16 sessions of the institute will be held in Hurst Hall on the campus, Massachusetts and Nebraska aves. nw., on Monday evenings.

Mother's $5 False Alarm Fine Delayed Till March by Judge

Judge Milton S. Kronheim, jr., yesterday fined a mother of two children $5 for sounding a false alarm of fire and then said he wished he had the power to be more lenient.

Convicted by the Municipal Court judge was Mrs. Ruth Stoddard, 20, of 1224 Half st. ne. She had testified that she pulled the box to summon aid when she feared some soldiers, throwing stones in her yard, might harm her children.

Judge Kronheim said this was a perfect example of the need of allowing judges to suspend sentences without burdening defendants with probation terms. Under a recent Municipal Court of Appeals decision, judges lack such power.

"I'm going to continue this case and give this woman until March 1, 1951, to pay the fine. If Congress or the Commissioners in the meantime give this court the necessary powers which we have asked for, I will suspend payment of the fine at that time," said the judge.

He then took Mrs. Stoddard's personal bond to reappear in court March 1.

Sales Upturn Narrows Here During Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington department store sales in the week ended August 26 were at a brisk pace, but well below the rate attained during the post-Korea buying rush.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday that local dollar volume during the week was 9 percent higher than in the same 1949 week. This compared with a sales surge of 20 percent in the four weeks ended August 26.

Some retailers are beginning to worry wth the thought that they "did next month's business last month." One executive, for example, said that his sales of women's ready-to-wear indicate that "July and August sales were borrowed from September and October."

Nationally, the Federal Reserve Board reported that sales in the week ended August 26 ran 16 percent above a year ago. This compared with margins of 12, 25 and 30 in the three preceding weeks and a peak 46 percent gain over last year for the week ended July 22 when scare buying apparently reached its crest.

Navy Mail Room Head Retires After 32 Years

Joseph R. Branson, 60, retired yesterday after 32 years as a Navy Department employe.

Looking much younger than his three-score years, Branson, who was head of the mail room of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, was honored at informal ceremonies yesterday.

Branson

He received a letter of commendation from Rear Admiral Clifford A. Swanson, Surgeon General of the Navy, and a gold wrist watch with a matching band from his fellow workers. The letter was read by Gordon Barnes, director of the Bureau's Administration Division.

Branson, an honorary past commander of the American Legion James Reese Post No. 5, served overseas in World War I with the 368 Buffaloes, a band unit attached to the Ninety-second Infantry Division.

Branson has had the distinction of organizing several Catholic bands. He formed and was for six years director of the boys band at St. Cyprians Catholic Church. He also organized a girls band at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church which he directed for three years.

Chronological Age Doesn't Count

By Ida Jean Kain

"DO YOU believe in age?" I ventured to ask Eve Arden, probably only because she is starring in "Over 21" this summer. Age of course is a subject you never, never bring up with a movie actress . . . not one who is over 21 at any rate.

That question stopped Our Miss Brooks of radio, but just for a second . . then she quipped, "Not chronological age."

Nothing daunted I asked, "Who do you think is responsible for the age phobia in Hollywood—the script writers, the movie audiences or the actresses themselves?"

"It's true that Hollywood is not grown up on the subject of age," Miss Arden said reflectively. "There seems to be an obsession that only youth is beautiful. In England they will make a realistic film, using a mature actress to play the part of a mature woman, and the picture will be a sensation because the audience finds it believable and real. Hollywood gets all excited, buys the story for a fabulous sum, and then makes it with a glamour girl who just hasn't lived long enough to have had that experience. The audience reaction isn't the same, and Hollywood wonders what went wrong."

Eve Arden is a striking blonde, tall, with a breezy manner, and, as you can see, is refreshingly frank. She's the ideal career woman—busy, efficient and lovely-looking. Wondering how she accomplished everything, I asked how actresses manage to keep beautiful in spite of their crowded schedules. One thing she resents is the time that must be spent in the beauty parlor . . . and it's a must for an actress. She passes along this new and novel idea for a beauty parlor that serves career women . . .

She proposes a Sleeping Beauty Shift to work on a gal while she slumbers. The idea is to go in at midnight, relax completely, and let the beauty-making tricks be in process while she sleeps. Then, Miss Arden explained brightly, a gal could wake up in the morning and look into the mirror with a pleased "Oh!" . . instead of the usual "Ugh."

She observed that nice as it would be for an actress to always stay young, that would be standing still . . . and no one really wants to stand still, for there comes a time when you learn how to enjoy living. She has learned to separate her life into compartments, and that way she lives each part fully and enjoys her home, her children and her career.

It was delightful to find a really mature actress who looks as young as Eve Arden.

Christ Child Home Patients Get New Electrocardiograph

Little patients at the Christ Child Home in Rockville, Md., who are suffering from heart ailments, were given new aid in their fight for good health this week.

An electrocardiograph machine, portable and self-developing, and valued at $765, was presented to the home by the Metropolitan Heart Guild of Washington. The machine will be used in the treatment of young heart patients who make up between one third and one half of the total number of ill children in the home. Of the 27 children there now, 8 are heart cases, according to Mrs. Margaret Gardner, superintendent.

During most of the year the home operates at full capacity, which allows for 31 patients. It is the only such institution in the Metropolitan area caring for convalescent children between six and 14 years of age. A Community Chest agency, the home provides a haven for children in that age bracket, regardless of race, creed or color.

The Metropolitan Heart Guild, donor of the machine, is made up of 500 volunteer workers. It was founded in August, 1949, by Mrs. Charles Friedenberg, to assist rheumatic fever and cardiac patients who are unable to pay for the expert care they require. Each month these volunteers provide transportation for 200 patients on visits to and from cardiac clinics; give holiday and birthday parties for those in the rheumatic fever unit at Gallinger Hospital; and make a yearly contribution to the Washington Heart Association. They are also planning a program to aid research in cardiac study.

A current drive to raise $7000 in funds is now being carried out by the group. Emblem is a three and one-half yard square damask tablecloth, appliqued with red hearts carrying the names of contributors to the fund.

THE marriage of Miss Selwa Carmen Showker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saleem Showker of Kingsport, Tenn., to Archibald Bulloch Roosevelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald B. For the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. John H. McCombe of Christ Church, the bride wore a gown of white chantilly lace over satin, and a fingertip veil attached to a coronet of matching lace.

Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Khalida Showker. Kermit Roosevelt was best man for his cousin.

When Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt return from a brief trip to Virginia Beach, they will make their home at Cold Spring Harbor. Mr. Roosevelt is chief of the Near East Section of the International Broadcasting Division of the State Department, with offices in New York City.

Falls Church Seeks Damages For Injunction

The Falls Church city council told its city attorney last night to seek an out-of-court settlement "satisfactory to the council" on damages to the city says it has suffered because of a recent Fairfax Circuit Court injunction.

The temporary injunction issued August 3 forbade briefly appointed former city manager Harry Wells to carry out any of his official duties. Wells, who replaced acting city manager Roy F. Dunn, on August 2, resigned shortly after the injunction was issued, and was replaced by Roy S. Braden.

Petitioners for the injunction were Councilman Samuel McCrary, Mrs. Merrill Lee Chanel, Lytton Gibson, Frank N. McElroy and Alvin Tasker. The yhave requested the court to dismiss their petition as a moot question now.

The board voted, 5 to 1, for the motion which authorized city attorney LaRue Van Meter to pursue the damage request at a scheduled September 8 court hearing, if an agreement is not reached before then.

City manager Braden, who told the council when appointed that he had another job offer and did not known whether he would stay "a week or a month," announced last night he would introduce several candidates for his job to the council in conference next week. Braden said he had written several interested city managers because "the council had asked me to help get interested candidates for the job."

First Regional Bridge Match Opens Here

Under the auspices of the Mid-Atlantic Bridge Conference, the first regional championships ever held in this vicinity opened yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel.

An individual event served as curtain raiser for the four-day tournament.

This round-robin title was won by W. B. Woodson of Salisbury, N. C. whose total of 171½ match points gave him a five-point edge over Mrs. E. H. Loftin of Washington.

Local players captured the remaining honor positions. H. G. Neede, Mrs. George Kathan and Dr. W. S. Benedict, ranked third, fourth and fifth, respectively, all within half a point of each other

There were 116 entrants in the field.

The mixed pair championship held last night drew 104 duos, including some of the ranking luminaries of the country. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sullivan of Philadelphia were the leading marital partnership.

Another star of first magnitude was Alvin Roth, who was the first life master in the District. Roth has lately moved back here from Miami, Fla. He was paired last night with Mrs. Rose Robins of this city.

Events on the program today include men and women pair championships to be held concurrently, beginning at 2 p. m., and the first round of a three session open pair match at 8:30 p. m.

Col. R. H. Skinner of Alexandria, Va., is president of the Mid-Atlantic Conference which includes units from Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and the District.

Russians Woo Iran by Agreeing To Border Talks

Tehran, Iran, Sept. 1 (AP).—Soviet Russia is stepping up its campaign for Iranian friendship by agreeing to discuss long-standing border disputes, it was learned today.

The Soviet proposal came in the midst of trade talks here, which apparently are intended to counter negotiations under way for an American loan to bolster Iranian economy against Communist pressure.

For years Iran has been trying to get Russia to settle a dozen boundary disputes which have led to minor frontier clashes. The Russians now have changed tactics abruptly in a new friendship campaign.

Tehran newspapers report that Soviet Ambassador Ivan Sadjikov is pressing Premier Ali Razmara to recognize the Chinese Communist regime. There has been no official confirmation of this.

Police Find Rape Victim To Be Elusive

Arlington police complained yesterday they are handicapped in their search for the rapist of a 23-year-old Ecuadorian girl because they have been unable to question the victim.

The attack took place last Tuesday in a wooded section of North Fairlington.

From the girl's hysterical ramblings at the hospital immediately after the attack, police learned the rapist was a large, muscular Negro who was naked when he attacked the girl. However, police declare they need a more adequate description.

Arlington Detective Chief C. Burns Pressley said he went to the girl's home Wednesday but her uncle "didn't want us to see her." Attorney John Paul Jones notified Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker Thursday that the petite Ecuadorian beauty had been removed from the county on the advice of a physician but added that police might be able to talk to her within several days.

Misled and 'Used' By Alien Subjects, Josh White Says

By The Associated Press

Josh White, Negro folk singer, testified yesterday he and many other entertainers have been "used and exploited by people who give allegiance to a foreign power."

White told the House Un-American Activities Committee he had given his time or signature to groups with "fine sounding titles" only to learn some were "phony false-face political rackets exploiting my eagerness to fight injustice."

He said he had never knowingly joined or supported any organization designed to overthrow this Government.

The singer appeared voluntarily.

White said that a statement of Negro baritone Paul Robeson that "Negroes would not fight for their country, against Soviet Russia or any other enemy, is both wrong and an insult."

White told the committee he is not and never has been a Communist.

Girl Resisting Kiss Hurled to Death From Speeding Car

Dover, N. H., Sept. 1 (U.P.).—Etta Shirley Frisbie, 17, was hurled to death from a speeding automobile after she refused to let her blind-date kiss her, the girl's companion charged today.

Corina Ruest, 15, said she and Etta fought off advances of one of the three youths who had offered to take them for a ride.

"He put his arm around Tootsie (Etta)," she said, "and tried to kiss her. She pushed him away.

"He grabbed her and threw her at the door. The next thing I knew I heard her scream and I saw the door open and her flying into the ditch."

Corina yelled to the driver to stop. He slowed up enough so that she leaped out and ran back to where Etta lay moaning in the road. The girl was dead of a skull fracture before a doctor arrived.

Three youths were seized later for questioning after their car was found wrecked.

Slack Is Indicted On Spying Charge; Death Is Possible

Greenville, Tenn., Sept. 1 (AP).—A Federal grand jury today indicted 44-year-old Alfred Dean Slack on charges of wartime spying for Russia.

The Government charges he conspired to supply Russian agents with secrets in the manufacture of the high explosive RDX while working as a chemist in 1943-44 at Holston Ordnance Works in nearby Kingsport, Tenn.

The FBI linked him with the Klaus Fuchs spy ring that passed atomic secrets to Soviet Russia. Slack worked for Manhattan Atomic Project at Oak Ridge after leaving Kingsport.

FBI agents said Slack admitted giving samples of RDX to Harry Gold, Philadelphia biochemist also awaiting trial on espionage charges.

500 ACRES—100 ACRES SOLD

Located in the zone of the new South Capitol st. bridge, about 4 squares beyond the District line in Maryland. This land should increase in value. On the Virginia end of the Memorial Bridge it has increased to over a million dollars an acre in the shopping district, and the other bridges in Virginia are worth a million dollars an acre in the shopping zone. When I was a milkman bringing milk to the White House that land was worth $100 an acre. Now it is worth a million dollars an acre. I wrote a similar ad to this in The Post, and here is a quotation from a letter I received. He says: "My Lord, why don't you keep it! Think," his party said, "how rich you will be tomorrow, and the next day. Here's your chance, Mister. By all means keep it—keep it." We got that same song when I developed Chevy Chase 50 years ago. The land I sold there then at a few cents a foot is now worth a million dollars an acre and more. You can have this land now as an entirety for $4,000 an acre. Suppose I would have sold it for a million dollars an acre a little later. This land will some day sell at a million dollars an acre, but I am settling my estate and I am in my 84th year, and I only have 4 children, and with the other property I have, they would have too much money. Ride out South Capitol st. to the District line, look ahead a few squares to the big woods and it is this property. You will see 100 million dollars' worth of building going up in this neighborhood. Reach me at my home, WO. 0933, Fulton R. Gardiner, owner. Brokers attention.

FCC Says It Favors CBS Color Television

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The Federal Communications Commission held off final decision on color television yesterday but announced it strongly favors the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The commission rejected the present color television systems of Radio Corp. of America and Color Television, Inc., as falling far short of the criteria for a TV color system.

It asked manufacturers to report on whether or not they can make TV sets adaptable to both present black-and-white broadcasting and color telecasting of the CBS variety.

In the absence of sufficient response—or protest—from the manufacturers, the commission said, it "will issue a final decision forthwith adopting the CBS field sequential color standards."

The decision means present TV set owners will have to buy adaptors if they wish to receive color broadcasts through those sets.

For the television stations, it means separate broadcasts will be required for the color and the black-and-white transmissions. Whether or not future programs will be broadcast simultaneously by a dual-licensed broadcaster equipped to transmit both is yet unanswerable.

The alternative would be for color television programs to compete directly with black-and-white programs. Color TV proponents have freely predicted that once color television is licensed, the noncolor broadcasts would die off in about five years.

The FCC deadline to manufacturers was set as September 29. By then, the FCC asked, manufacturers prepared to start making the dual sets within 30 days should so notify the commission.

If sufficient manufacturers do so, it was noted, the commission would then issue the proposed order adopting the CBS system. In effect, the commission decision says that if the CBS system is to be used the sooner it is adopted the fewer home sets will have to be converted.

The decision was announced, not accidentally, after the New York Stock Market's close. With a Labor Day weekend, it was pointed out, television and manufacturers' interests have an extra day to prepare for market reactions. Stocks concerned have fluctuated wildly at each rumor that the FCC had readied a decision.

Despite its rejection of the RCA and CTI color systems, the FCC left open the door for the introduction of new color systems if they can be demonstrated before December 5. RCA, for example, claims its system is constantly being improved.

Both RCA and CTI systems were "compatible," which means they would transmit color programs receivable in black-and-white by the present owners of some 7,000,000 TV sets. Or the same set owners could buy adapters for their receivers to get their programs in color.

The now FCC-favored CBS color system is not compatible—it cannot be tuned-in in black-and-white on the present home sets.

Concerning the disadvantage of the CBS color TV, the commission noted that "compatability . . . is too high a parice to put on color." It further noted that with expectations of eventual ownership of more than 40,000,000 receiving sets "it would not be in the public interest to deprive 40,000,000 American families of color television in order to spare the owners of (today's) 7,000,000 sets the expense required for adaptation."

If the CBS system is finally approved, the commission stated, present home set owners, even if they do not adapt the sets to color TV, "will be able to receive programs broadcast in accordance with present monochrome (black-and-white) standards . . . for several years after the decision"

Should the manufacturers agree to the commission proposal, they will use "bracket standards" in making new TV receiving sets. That is, the new receivers would accommodate current black-and-white TV programs or could instantly be geared into color telecasts at the flip of a switch.

The FCC announcement, long awaited by manufacturers and television interests with fortunes invested in the field, follows lengthy hearings by the FCC on color television. The hearings were called by the FCC to determine: (A) Is color TV ready for public use, and (B) if it is, which system or systems should be used?

Would License Others

Each of the three companies seeking approval of its system had announced it would freely license other members of the industry to produce receiving and transmitting equipment—on a royalty basis. It has been estimated patent and royalty rights might approach 150 million dollars.

Spokesmen for the industries cautiously told reporters they'd need time to digest the commission's 80-page report before any conclusions could be reached.

Although the FCC anouncement followed close of the New York Stock Exchange, its market effect was noted somewhat by reaction in the time-favored San Francisco Exchange. There, according to wire reports, CBS stock rose 4⅛ points, to 37¾ in comparison with the New York Exchange's closing price of 33⅝. The issue very seldom sels on the California city market, but 600 shares were traded late yesterday.

CBS declared in New York it considered the FCC report a "major victory" and said it would be on the air "with 20 hours per week of color television within 30 days after the commission mkaes its final decision."

RCA said in New York, according to the Associated Press, that after the commission makes its when a final decision is reached, it is confident its "all-electronic fully compatible system" will be approved.

From manufacturers came expressions of disappointment. Most had favored a system that would be compatible with the present black and white system.

F. A. D. Andrea, president of Andrea Radio Corp. and pioneer radio and television manufacturer, said the FCC announcement "came as a distinct shock to me."

Dr. Allen B. Dumont, president of Allen B. Dumont Laboratories which makes sets and operates a television network, said:

"From a preliminary examination it looks as if the FCC agrees with our premise that color is not ready commercially at the present time."

George Marshall Free After Contempt Term

Ashland, Ky., Sept. 1 (U.P.)—George Marshall, national chairman of the Civil Rights Congress, was released from the Federal Correctional Institution today after serving 90 days for contempt of Congress.

The Supreme Court twice refused to consider his case. Marshall was cited four years ago for refusing to turn over to the House Un-American Activities Committee a list of contributors to the National Federation for Constitutional liberty.

Tydings' Opponent Calls Committee Report On Disloyalty 'Go-Signal' for Communists

Baltimore, Sept. 1 (AP).—Hugh J. Monaghan, 2d, asserted last night that the question of whether there have been Communists in the State Department has not been answered.

The Baltimore attorney is one of Senator Tydings' opponents for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate.

He said in a radio-television address that the report of the Tydings subcommittee which investigated charges that Communists had gained a toehold in the State Department "has given the green light to Stalin's agents in this country to continue to gnaw at the foundation of our national security."

Monaghan quoted the resolution setting up the Tydings committee to show that it was "directed to conduct a full and complete study and investigation as to whether persons who are disloyal to the United States are or have been employed by the Department of State."

The candidate said there has been no definition by the Supreme Court of the word "disloyal."

He argued that "since 'disloyalty' is such an intangible thing, one would think Mr. Tydings would have leaned over backwards in the interest of our own security."

Then the candidate went on to assert:

"The Tydings report contains glaring admissions that the State Department did not know who it had on its rolls during the period from August 15, 1945, until about mid-1947, from a security standpoint."

Butler Outlines Campaign Platform

Baltimore, Sept. 1 (AP).—A strong stand against Russian aggression, appointment of "patriots" to Government positions and rigid economy i nall domestic measures—those are what John Marshall Butler calls the "keynotes" of his campaign platform.

Butler is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate seat now held by Democratic Senator Tydings. The other Republican candidate is D. John Markey of Frederick County.

Butler outlined his platform yesterday in a reply to a questionnaire from the Maryland League of Women Voters.

Demanding from the national Administration pertinent facts on our foreign and domestic situations.

Adopting the Hoover Commission recommendations.

Lane and Mahoney Clash on New Issue

Baltimore, Sept. 1 (AP).—Governor Lane and George P. Mahoney continued today to trade verbal blows in their campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor.

The latest exchange occurred over the financing of State licensing and examining boards.

Mahoney had said that such boards are holding "millions of dollars in idle cash" and that the practice "takes tax dollars away from the citizens of the State far in advance of their use . . ."

Lane denied that the boards are financed by tax funds and added that "the public doesn't pay one cent toward the operation of these licensing and examining boards he (Mahoney) talked about."

The various boards, he said, are financed by fees they collect for examinations or licenses.

Unless U. S. Orders

Virginia U. Won't Admit Negro Lawyer

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 1 (AP).—The University of Virginia took the position today that it would admit otherwise qualified Negroes to its graduate law school only if ordered to do so by a Federal court or if the constitution and laws of the Commonwealth are changed.

This stand was taken by the university board of visitors in a brief filed in Federal court where a United States tribunal Tuesday will hear the petition of Gregory M. Swanson, Martinsville. Swanson, denied admission to the law school by the university board of visitors last month because of his race, is asking the court to enjoin the board from such action against him or others similarly situated.

The university's reply to the Negro attorney's petition did not attempt to contest the view that under Federal constitutional law he is entitled to be admitted to the school. It did seek, however, to hold the issue to Negroes who might be applicants for the law school only, rather than to those who might seek admission to other colleges or departments of the university.

As to Swanson, or others "similarly situated," the board's position and that of the other defendants—President Colgate W. Darden, jr., Dean Frederick D. G. Ribble of the law school and Registrar George Oscar Ferguson, jr.—was this in the case:

They believe the constitution and statutes of the Commonwealth of Virginia preclude the breakdown of segregation in education even at the graduate level of the University of Virginia.

Federal action in the matter was brought by the board's refusal last July to accept Swanson's application. It turned down the Negro's request notwithstanding an opinion by Attorney General Almond that it was obvious such action couldn't be successfully defended if Swanson took the matter to the Federal courts.

Almond, moreover, expressed "grave doubt" whether Swanson was barred by State law—either constitutional or statutory.

Nevertheless, the board turned Swanson down, citing the constitution and the State statutory law. It noted also that Virginia has appropriated funds which may be used to provide for out-of-State education of Virginia Negroes where such facilities are not available in Virginia.

Maestro Kay Kyser Talks About Video

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, (AP).—Edgar Bergen, who plans to enter television this fall, was asking for advice from his friend, Kay Kyser, a TV veteran for all of a year.

Kyser

"Well," drawled the old professor, "take everything you have learned about show business, throw it out the window and start over."

Kyser repeated the advice when I saw him at his home, where he is spending a few quiet weeks before returning to the video whirl in New York.

"That's right," he said "This television is new breed of dog. It just sits there and thumbs its nose at you and says, 'go ahead—be good; I dare you.'

"When I started in. I thought it would be like doing a stage show, with the home viewers looking in on it. But then I discovered I couldn't even see the studio audience. Three great big cameras were standing between us."

Easiest of All

BUT, contrary to what most other stars believe, Kyser finds TV the easiest of all mediums. And he's been in them all.

"Of course, I don't have the trouble of learning lines," said the maestro, who has carried his "College of Musical Knowledge" into the new field. "I read the questions out of a book and ad lib the rest. What few lines I have to memorize I can do between numbers.

"Television is easier because I can be myself In radio you have to keep jabbering to get the point across and naturally you have to exaggerate. In TV I can act more naturally and do with a look or a shrug what used to require a lot of words."

Kyser has this advice for TV newcomers: make sure your show changes.

"The shows that will last are the ones that give the public something new every week," he theorized. "In radio you can give them the same old thing. That's because the audience can use imagination. You might think of me as short and young, someone else would think of me as fat and old.

"But in television, the whole thing is right there on the screen. Unless there is something new to look at every week—that's all, brother."

The sage of Rocky Mount, N. C., dropped another pearl of wisdom when Justin Dart, the drug magnate, asked him: "Do you think television is here to stay?" Kay's answer:

"Do you think breathing is here to stay?"

CBS HAS decided to offer television competition to Milton Berle of NBC other than old-time feature movies on Tuesday night beginning in October. It will be done through an hour of new drama, with a sponsor putting on name talent and plays on alternate weeks and the network filling the other periods with its "sure as fate" and the network filling the other periods with its stories.

Doctor Ousted As Conservator Of Aunt's Estate

Danbury, Conn., Sept. 1 (NYHT). Dr. Donald F. Gibson, 48, Danbury physician, was ousted today as conservator of the estate of his aunt, Eleanor K. Peterson, and ordered to make restitution to it of $9828.50 by Probate Judge Robert K. Watson.

The action was a result of a police investigation of the financial interests of Dr. Gibson, one of the chief figures in the inquiry into the death of Miss Elizabeth May Ayres, 74, Danbury spinster with whom Dr. Gibson made his home. She named him executor and sole beneficiary of her estate, valued at from $65,000 to $100,000, in a will executed June 15, 41 days before her death. Judge Watson invalidated this will August 24.

Judge Watson today charged Dr. Gibson with "a too-hasty and unnecessary expenditure of the incapable's own funds" and held he had paid "excessive and improper" amounts of money to Miss Ayres and to Mrs. Shirley Golembesky for his aunt's care.

D. C. Asks Senate To Grant $290,000 Defense Fund

District officials appealed yesterday to the Senate Appropriations committee to grant $290,000 for organizing a civilian defense program for Washington.

The House voted to cut the fund to $30,000 after an earlier tentative vote of approval for the higher figure.

The appeal for restoring the defense funds to the suplemental appropriations bill was made in a hearing by Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District engineer commissioner, and William G. Wilding, deputy budget officer.

The Senate committee also heard an appeal for $100,000 to continue the District child day care center program. The House voted only enough money to run it a few more weeks, despite Congressional approval of a bill earlier to continue the centers for three more years. Testifying were the Rev. Leonard Edmonds, chairman of the advisory committee, Mrs. Irene Raine and Mrs. Marguerite Gray, of the parents committee.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Gold is on vacation. His column today takes the form of a letter to his managing editor.

Dear Boss:

"Anybody got change for a half-cent?" Walter asked as we drove east across the Mississippi from St. Louis.

It was too early in the day for such bright remarks, and neither Bernice nor I could muster anything better than a blank look.

Our 14-year-old held up a green sales tax token and grinned. "Don't you have five singles for a five?"

He had picked up the token during our stay in the Mound City. (That "Mound City" is a cutie I had left over from my sportswriting days.) The sales tax is 2 percent, and instead of changing a whole penny at arbitrarily set levels, it's figured right down to a tenth of a cent. The customer gets his fractional change in tokens—red ones for tenths of a cent (mills) and green ones for half-cents (five mills).

It's certainly a more accurate way of levying a sales tax, but at the same time it's more bother—and certainly more annoying to those clerks and customers who didn't pay sufficient attention during their arithemtic classes.

We headed northeast on Route 66, toward Chicago. A few miles into Illinois we began to see evidence of the hot political battle now in progress in that State. Posters in several small towns announced upcoming meetings and rallies, and one popular slogan much in evidence was:

"Help Defeat Communism. Reelect Scott Lucas and the Entire Democratic Ticket."

They seem to believe in one of Shirley Povich's pet theories: "A good offense is the best defense."

The 100 miles between St. Louis and Springfield convinced us that Illinois has one traffic law that other States could well copy. Roadside signs decree that trucks and buses must maintain 300-foot intervals, except when passing.

We twice encountered drivers who ignored the signs, and had to follow them for miles because there's such a great amount of approaching traffic, and so many dips and turns in the road.

But most truckers obey the law, and even signal to motorists behind them when the road ahead is clear for passing. So we made good time.

In Springfield, we stopped at the So Ho, at 4th and Jefferson, where my family scared the daylights out of me by pretending they couldn't decide between the $3.50 porterhouse and the $4.50 chateaubriand steaks. They settled for smaller steaks, and the bill for the three of us came to only $4.60—including the spumoni. Very good eating, too.

While we were in Springfield, we stopped off to see "the Lincoln home," the only home Abraham Lincoln ever owned. It stands at eighth and Jackson, and looks so much like the surrounding houses that we couldn't even find it the first time we drove by.

Young Lawyer Lincoln bought the frame cottage in 1844 for $1500 and lived in it until 1861, when he came to Washington. The public is admitted now to the lower floor, which has been preserved in much the same manner as Mount Vernon.

Incidentally, if you think your calendar wrist watch is something new, you're mistaken. Lincoln also had a clock that kept track of minutes, hours, days of the week and the date of the month. The only thing it lacked was the little red figures for calculating air speeds, now standard equipment on wrist watches.

The Lincoln tomb is in the Oak Ridge Cemetery, at the other end of town. An impressive 117-foot spire rises over the inscription (Stanton's) "Now he belongs to the ages," and Honest Abe sleeps in a marble and bronze vault below.

Even more impressive than the tomb is the manner in which people stand in awe in the presence of Lincoln's mortal remains. Housewives, leathery farmers, crisp businessmen, tired tourists—even restless children look with hushed respect at the spot where Lincoln lies. The sincerity of their felings is inescapable.

And then you walk out of the tomb into the sunlight again, and pass through a door on which scores of idiotic Kilroys have carved their names and initials. It's like a slap in the face.

Route 66 led us straight into Chicago at a rapid pace. "You know Chicago prices," counseled Bernice. "I want to stop at an older hotel, where prices won't be so high."

At the Congress, on Michigan Boulevard, the clerk offered to put us up for $12 in a double room with a tub. With a shower it would be $15. We retired to think it over.

Back in the car, parked outside, Walter was bursting with news. "Y'know what happened while you were inside? A lady came out of the lobby, the doorman tweeted his whistle, a cab pulled up 10 feet from where he was parked, and the lady handed the doorman a dollar tip. A dollar tip for blowing his whistle."

"This is Chicago," I murmured.

"Yes," snapped Bernice, "and we're out of our league looking for a hotel on Boul Mich."

She had wounded my pride, and I stubbornly headed for one of the world's biggest and ritziest hotels—the Stevens—right smack on Michigan blvd.

As we got out of the car, a well-dressed man emerged from the lobby and was promptly drenched by a flood of water released from above. "Some playful convention delegate I guess," said the policeman on duty sympathetically. The bedraggled guest went back inside to change his clothes, and everybody else went about his business as if nothing had happened.

At the registration desk, the room clerk gave us an expert look of appraisal and said: "Yes, sir, we have a fine suite for you at $15."

"A broom closet," growled Bernice as we went up in the elevator. "That's all you can expect at the Stevens for $15."

Well, boss, I should live in such a broom closet all my life. We have two huge adjoining rooms, beautifully furnished, with two complete baths and a wonderful view of the boulevard and the lake front. As soon as I divide my remaining money by 15, I'll let you know when we're coming home. Bill

P. S. Ouch! Cigarettes are 24 cents a pack at the lobby newsstand. I'll be home sooner than I thought.

Vienna, Sept. 1 (AP).—The Russian Army Newspaper Oestreischische Zeitung reported today that Maj. Gen. G. M. Ziniev will replace Col. Gen. A. S. Zheltov as Deputy Russian High Commissioner in Austria.

to build a great democracy
we first must face the truth:
It's hard to build successful men on unsuccessful youth

Numerous traits of character unite to make a successful man, but perhaps one of the most important is the "saving habit." This trait is best established in youth, so many wise parents have established saving accounts for their youngsters and encouraged a systematic routine of regular deposits.

May we talk to you about your child?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Military Criticized for Inaction

By Drew Pearson

At every Cabinet meeting, President Truman makes the rounds of all present and asks if they have anything to report. At a recent meeting, Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, said:

Symington

"I think I should tell you, Mr. President, that the stockpiling program is a total failure, or almost so—due to the inability of the military and the Munitions Board to tell us what strategic materials they need.

"We have been after them for months to tell us," Symington continued, "but we can't get the answers. And it's impossible to stockpile intelligently unless we know what the military will need for war."

As Symington gave further details, Secretary of Defense Johnson's face turned a bright red. The Munitions Board is directly under him. It and the military are supposed to decide what strategic materials the Nation needs in case of war; and following their decision the National Security Resources Board is supposed to acquire them.

Symington's report caused some Cabinet members to believe that the military's woeful mistakes regarding inadequate bazookas sent to Korea and the complete failure to look ahead re United States tanks are not isolated cases. They fear the military has not looked ahead on other vital problems.

Frugal Joe Martin

Democratic Congressman Foster Furcolo and Thomas Lane of Massachusetts were joshing their fellow-Stater, House Republican Leader Joe Martin, about his exemplary habits.

"I understand, Joe, that you don't smoke," said Lane.

"That's right," said the former Speaker.

"Don't drink, either, do you?" asked Furcolo.

"Nothing stronger than grape juice," replied Martin.

"Bachelor, too?"

Martin nodded.

"Then you must be mighty rich," observed Lane.

"The truth is that I'm only moderately fixed, but it's good to hear somebody called a rich Republican again," slyly retorted Martin. "You Democrats have all the money these days."

Money for Capehart

Some years ago the United States Senate refused to seat Senator Frank L. Smith of Illinois because he spent $100,000 in a hot primary campaign. But now, in the neighboring state of Indiana, GOP Senator Homer Capehart has spent the staggering sum of $91,961.84 in his primary campaign, even though he had no opponent. Capehart's senatorial salary for six years is $75,000, to obtain which he has already spent $91,961.84.

It will now be interesting to watch how much the "music box Senator" will spend his general election, in which he faces a terrific battle from dynamic Democrat Alex Campbell.

The chances are that the money will continue to roll in from his wealthy backers. For Capehart had such an easy time raising money that he collected $99,679.35, or $7,717.51 more than he spent. His chief bank-rollers were the Lilly pharmaceutical people of Indianapolis, who fattened the kitty by about $20,000.

Some of Capehart's campaign expenditures are equally interesting. Though he had no primary opponent, he reported to the Indiana Secretary of State that he spent almost $40,000 in salaries for campaign workers. Also, $6268.89 for radio and newspaper advertising, $2000 for recordings and $74 for "flowers."

Other expenditures included $2,804.15 for "rent" (presumably office space and hotel lodgings); $1431.87 for general "expenses" and $1059 for "postage." Of course, some of this was undoubtedly an advance investment aimed at the final election and was justified by the fact that Capehart faces the political battle of his life.

Most modest entry in Homer's campaign report was $2.50 for "repairs." Indiana Democratic leaders are speculating that this was used to mend "one little political fence" somewhere in the State.

Two McCarthys

A clerk spotted a young, freshman Congressman seated at a House Armed Services Committee recent hearing and requested his name for the record.

"McCarthy," was the reply.

"From Wisconsin?" asked the clerk.

"No—Minnesota. I'm the Democratic McCarthy in Congress."

"Just so there won't be any mistake about his identity," spoke up Representative Pat Sutton of Tennessee, "be sure to make his first name Gene instead of Joe."

Note—No relation to the irrepressible Senator Joe, Representative Eugene McCarthy has been doing a quiet, effective job in various constructive fields, including veterans' welfare legislation.

Conscientious Senator Hunt of Wyoming, of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, has received a threatening letter, warning that if he sticks his nose too far into the gambling syndicate he might be "rubbed out." Postmarked "Boston" and written in careful, intelligent English, this was no crackpot letter.

Instead of being intimidated, Senator Hunt introduced an amendment to the tax bill to force gamblers to pay a 99 per cent income tax on all their winnings. This would put most of the gamblers out of business.

Merry-Go-Round

New Mexico's Senator Chavez was so attentive to movie actress Linda Darnell in showing her around the Capitol recently that he whisked her away from admiring page boys . . . The Russians have started jamming the radios of the United States Seventh Fleet now stationed off Formosa. In addition, the Air Force has reported Russian jamming of its radio network in California and Alaska. This could be serious. It makes quick communication impossible . . . Congratulations to the machinists union and Lockheed Aircraft of Burbank, Calif., for their "buck of the month" club. Each worker contributes one buck a month to help sick children, needy families, and disabled war veterans—two million dollars raised so far . . . A naval officer in the Pentagon Guided Missiles Section started a new crop of "flying saucer" rumors the other day by passing off "flying saucer" toys as authentic models. (He had bought them in the Pentagon drugstore) . . . Senator McCarran of Nevada has made a political football of a bill that would grant American citizenship to 3000 Korean immigrants — at a time when we are trying to win friends in Korea. McCarran has doctored up the bill with so many of his pet security measures that Senator Majority Leader Lucas has been forced to hold it up.
